THIRTY-SIXTH YEAR — LIMA, OHIO, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1920 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

COAL SURVEY IS ASKED BY BURKHARDT

C. OF C. APPEALED TO BY MAYOR

Shipments to Lima Show Big Decrease for Year.

MINES ARE LAYING OFF MEN

Priority Order Cuts Deliveries for Domestic Use.

Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt requested the Lima Chamber of Commerce Saturday to make a survey of the fuel situation of the city.

He declared he has made investigations which show that less than 10 per cent of the city's coal supply for the winter has been stored. At this time last summer, he said, 40 per cent of the winter's supply had been received.

The shortage included the public schools. In September, 1919, the entire winter's supply had been provided, he said, but for this year the amount which it has been possible to secure up to the present time will fall below 10 per cent.

SHIPMENTS FALL OFF

One dealer in Lima had received 5,000 tons less coal for the four months ending September 11, than he had received at the same time last year, the mayor's investigation showed.

His letter to the chamber of commerce followed appeals to Governor Cox and the interstate commerce commission.

Minor Evans of the Minor Evans Coal Co. declared mines would be operating to capacity but for the priority given lake shipments by the interstate commerce commission. He said he talked to the managers of two coal companies over long distance telephone Saturday morning both of whom declared they were laying off men because orders have been cancelled by lake dealers on account of the high prices. Inasmuch as it is impossible for them to obtain cars to make shipments to other points until the lake dealers have received the supply allotted by the interstate commerce commission, Evans declared, these operators found it necessary to lay off their men. These companies operate mines at Sprague, W. Va., and at Hazard, Ky.

PRICES FLUCTUATE

Evans said he has spent the greater part of the last five weeks at these mines, but did not buy heavily owing to the fluctuation in prices. He said he was assured from the activities at the mines that there will be an ample supply as soon as the priority order is cancelled on September 21.

"There is bound to be a coal shortage this winter," declared William Smith, of the United Fuel Co., "but I expect conditions to be much better after the priority order of the interstate commerce commission is lifted September 21."

These dealers declared they have no data by which they can make a comparison of the amount of coal received this year and last, up to the present time.

MOTION PICTURES FOR SCHOOL

Central High Plans Interesting Public Entertainments

Motion picture entertainments will be one of the big features of the Central High School this year if the plans now being considered are put into effect, according to Principal R E. Offenhauer.

It is the intention of the authorities to hold a show in the evening every two weeks, open to the public. These shows will be of the highest class and will probably follow programs mapped out at the University of Wisconsin this summer at a meeting held there of representatives from the different states. Prof. Offenhauer was one of the representatives from Ohio at this meeting.

Plans are being made to have the picture "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" shown here Sept. 24 and "The Blue Bird" on Oct. 8. It is not yet certain whether these pictures can be brought here on these dates. Arrangements have been made for Dicken's "Tale of Two Cities" to be shown here sometime in the near future tho the date has not definitely been set.

Besides these shows a daily industrial film will be shown at noon for the pupils. These films are interesting and instructive. There are a large number of them, one being "Producing the Ladies Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post" which has been released by the Curtiss Publishing Co. Filmed stories for children will probably be a Saturday afternoon feature.

Another projecting machine and some new equipment is expected to arrive early this week.

ASK CANCELLATION OF MORTGAGE IN COURT SUIT

Money in the sum of $2,016.61 is asked of the People's Bank Co., Columbus Grove, its cashier, George W. Core, and Harry H. Hollis, also of Columbus Grove, in a suit filed in common pleas court by Isabelle R. Parkin and John H. Parkin, her husband, formerly of Putnam-co.

They ask, in the petition, the mortgage which Parkin and his wife executed, claiming they did not know it was such, be cancelled and that Core account to them for rents and profits on property they claim he secured.

The property consisted of two lots, 193 and 257, in Seinsheimer's addition of Clifton, to Lima. They were purchased by Harry L. DeWitt, C. A. Orr and H. H. Miller.

LABOR CONDITION HERE GOOD

Many Plants Running Full Time and Need Men.

Labor conditions in Lima are satisfactory considering the condition of the money markets, authorities said Saturday and altho the outlook for the winter can be only speculation, Lima manufacturers and industrial heads are almost unanimous in predicting a good winter, despite conditions elsewhere.

L. A. Larsen, secretary and treasurer of the Lima Locomotive Works said in regard to the industrial condition: "We have plenty of orders on hand to keep our entire force busy until long after the first of the year. Several large orders were recently received and we are running about the full schedule of men. The winter's outlook in our business seems bright to me, and I do not think it will be necessary to let down on any of our work."

Fred Biszentz, secretary and treasurer of the Chalmers Pump and Manufacturing Co., stated: "We are putting in full time at our plant, with large orders on hand ready to be filled as soon as possible. We are working a full force of men and expect to be busy for some months."

R. J. Platte, secretary and treasurer of the Deisel-Wemmer Co., said: "Of course we employ women to a large extent in all of our branch offices, but there never has been a time when we have been so rushed on orders. Our orders for San Felice cigars alone, double our output and we are way behind on many of our other large orders. We can use all of the women and men too, who desire employment in any of our factories."

Max Bernstein, president and treasurer of the Gramm-Bernstein Motor Truck Co. stated: "We are fairly well stocked up on orders, but owing to the tightening of the money markets it is practically impossible to run as full a force as several months ago. In several of our departments we have cut down the forces, but for the most part we are running the average schedule."

$2,500 FOR DEATH

Ohio Electric Settles Suit For $20,000 Damages

Amicable settlement of damages for the death of David C. Bunn, former Ohio Electric freight conductor, was made in common pleas court Saturday, when the Ohio Electric confessed judgment for $2,500. The suit was instituted early in the spring by Edwin A. Stainbrook, administrator of the estate of Bunn.

Bunn was killed on May 20, 1919, in the freight house of the Ohio Electric, S. Main and Water-sts, when two freight cars he was endeavoring to couple, crashed together, crushing him.

Bunn left a widow and a daughter, Fairy, 8 years old. The suit was for $20,000.

DENVER SUFFERS BATHTUB SHORTAGE

DENVER.—"Bathless" homes are threatening Denver.

Local plumbing concerns declare that a serious shortage in bathtubs prevails here because of inability to secure the highly necessary sanitary equipment from manufacturers in the East.

Builders of new homes may be forced to resurrect the old-fashioned circular washtubs for their ablutions, it is feared.

RETAIL MERCHANTS SECRETARIES COMING TO LIMA, SEPT. 21

Retail secretaries from every part of Ohio will assemble in Lima on Sept. 21.

The occasion is the quarterly convention of Ohio Secretaries, brought to Lima thru the efforts of "Jimmie" Morton of the Lima Merchants' Association.

Morton announced Saturday the visiting secretaries will be entertained at a noonday luncheon. A membership meeting will be held in the evening, he said.

A number of the visitors being Elks, according to Morton, they will remain in Lima for the Elks' clam bake September 22.

O. E. APPEALS TO GET INCREASE

Temporary Relief on Rates is Asked by Company.

October 14 has been set as the date for hearing the appeal of the Ohio Electric railway Co. from the rates for light, heat and power, fixed by an emergency ordinance passed by the city council on August 2. By the terms of this ordinance the rates which have been in force with the O. E. were granted until an agreement is reached on the new franchise.

Vice President J. Harvey McClure declared Saturday the appeal is only for temporary relief, until the new ordinance is completed. He said the rates in force at present are too low, being the same which have been charged for the last 10 years. The petition did not designate the rate of increase, according to McClure, but left it to the commission to fix rates which will put the company on a paying basis.

Mayor Burkhardt declared Saturday he intends to attend the hearing with the city solicitor in the interests of the city.

The Mayor was unable to state how soon the appraisal of the property of the O. E. will be completed and the council can proceed with the franchise. The engineers employed by the city have completed the field work in connection with the appraisal, he said, and are now completing the work at their offices in Columbus. A report is expected within a short time.

The entire franchise question he said hinges on the result of this appraisal.

RENT PROBE WILL BE MADE SOON

Excessive Charges Alleged in Complaints to Committee.

NO PROFITEERING—DEALERS

Leading Realtors Say Returns Not Too High.

Cases of alleged rent profiteering in Lima have already been called to the attention of the Allen-co fair price commission, Chairman J. B. Dugan declared Saturday, following announcement that the rent situation is to be thoroly investigated early next week.

Dugan declared the matter is not to be taken up actively until the fair-price list for restaurants is received, and both matters may be considered by the commission at the same time.

One case has been reported to the commission, it is understood, where the owners of a flat building occupied by a number of families are charged with charging profiteering prices. In such cases, the advice of Fair Pricer Dugan to renters is to furnish the commission with the location of the building, the rent formerly paid, and in case of a recent increase the amount of the increase. With this information, he said, the matter will be turned over immediately to federal authorities for investigation.

A gross profit of 10 per cent on the investment, according to Dugan, is a fair price to be charged on residence property.

DEALERS SAY RENTS REASONABLE

Local real estate dealers interviewed are unanimous in the expression of the belief that no profiteering exists in Lima.

"I don't think there is a bit of profiteering in the city," declared S. S. Fishel, of Michael and Fishel, real estate dealers. "I don't believe there is a house in the city," he declared, "where the owners are realizing a gross return of 10 per cent on their investment."

Fishel declared upkeep will amount to 2 per cent and insurance and taxes to an average of 1 1-2 per cent, making a gross return of 10 per cent necessary to make the owner a profit of 6 per cent, net.

"Property owners in Lima have all been very fair on the renting question," declared J. M. Boose. Boose said he had no property listed which is bringing a return of over 10 per cent, and did not know of any dealer who has.

"If you take the valuation of property as it is to day," declared J. J. Wrye, there is no profiteering.

B. W. Green declared that practically every case of alleged rent profiteering which had come to his attention was in cases where houses were rented furnished.

"Rents in Lima are now from 25 to 30 per cent lower than they should be, and than they will be in a short time," declared A. J. Dunn.

Dunn said that in no case is his company realizing a gross return as high as 10 per cent, and in some cases he declared it is as low as seven per cent.

KNOTTY PROBLEMS

Suffrage Brings up Many Perplexing Questions

Suppose, with full suffrage for women now one of the big topics of the day, Mary Jones registers as such for the fall election. In the meantime Mary marries John Smith. Will she lose her vote, or will she vote in November as Mary Jones or Mrs. John Smith?

On the other hand, suppose Mrs. John Jones registers in full anticipation of performing her newly acquired political duty but is divorced before election day and has her maiden name restored? What then?

These are only a few of the questions that are being queried, and answered by Miss Drusilla Reilly and Mrs. W. C. Crayton, prominent workers in the new League for Women Voters.

In neither case will the women lose their votes, but will vote by the name which she is known on election day.

NARROW ESCAPE IN CRASH

WAPAKONETA — Mrs. J. H. Goeke and two children and her mother, Mrs. Mollie Nichols of Lima, in a closed car, driven by Tod Berry, were in danger of serious injury when a Ford roadster driven by Orrin Fleming, collided with the Goeke car four miles north of this city. Both cars were badly damaged. The Ford car was hurled against a telephone pole breaking the pole down.

CITY MAY GET AIR MAIL SERVICE

Proposed Route will Pass Over Lima, Officials Believe

LANDING FIELD NECESSARY

Mayor Has Plans for Station on Outskirts

Lima citizens may be receiving letters by aerial mail within a short time.

Bids were received Friday by Otto Praeger, director of the air mail service, for the first route planned to pass over the city. It will go from New York to Chicago, thru Harrisburg, Pittsburg, and Ft. Wayne.

It was in anticipation of the establishment of this route, Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt declared Saturday, that Ft. Wayne established at great expense under extreme difficulties, a landing field for aircraft.

Lima is unprepared in this respect, altho the mayor declared plans are under way for the equipment of a field here. The field east of the Lima driving park has received the approval of experts. Captain Lipsner, who is promoting the project is at present in Chicago, but will return early next week.

Other routes on which bids are open are from Pittsburg to St. Louis, Cleveland to Detroit and New York to Atlanta.

Other routes which are anticipated, and which would probably pass over Lima are from Detroit to Cincinnati and from Cleveland to St. Louis, according to Mayor Burkhardt.

Bids for aerial mail service must be cheaper than the service is given by the railroads, before they will be accepted, according to a ruling of the post office department.

CROOK-DRAMA REVIVED BY MEXICAN PLOT

Highly Colorful Portrait of Villa Presented in "The Bad Man", by Porter Emerson

"Call the Doctor" Cooly Received — "The Sweetheart Shop" Needs Judicious Trimming

(BY FREDERICK F. SCHRADER)

NEW YORK—The crook-drama has been popular these six or seven years. But even a good thing can be overdone. Theater-goers, being but grown-up children prickling with the yearning for constant change, are bent on getting their favorite pabulum in a new dressing, with new surroundings and a new atmosphere. So Porter Emerson Browne has gone to Mexico for the stuff that stage-dreams, otherwise plays, are made of. And he gives us a highly colored portrait of Villa in "The Bad Man."

Pancho Villa's banditry is the kind that appeals to the imagination as strongly as ever did the personality of Dick Turpin and Jack Sheppard of the dim and distant past. Villa, being a 20th century knight of the road, differs in detail, conducting business on a wholesale scale. Being also a patriot, he has led an army. Rumor credits him with the saving grace of humor. He can ply his trade without affecting a high tragedy air and making everybody melancholy.

The English bandits all strutted their hour in chivalrous bravery upon the stage. The old play-book catalogs proved that they figured as melodrama ad comic opera heroes. We know from contemporary accounts that they were rapturously applauded. There was a time in old England when the hold-up man was as much a popular idol to the multitude as Babe Ruth is to the baseball fans in New York. Now Villa has found his Bosworth, but it is Holbrook Blinn rather than his literary sponsor who deserves credit for "The Bad Man" at the Comedy. A success it undoubtedly is, and it is the lively, approximating farce, distinguishing the performance that makes it go.

* * *

The three acts transpire in a ranch-house on the desolate plains just across from the Mexican border. The young owner has come away from Maine with a heart lost to a lofty lady to whom he did not breathe his love. With her husband she also on the ranche just when he is to give up the uneven fight against fate, twenty thousand dollars in debt, and foreclosure staring him in the face. Unhappy over his lost Lenore and his broken fortune, things are in this state, when the notorious bandit, Pancho Lopez, makes his on the ranch—just in time to another tragedy. The husband discovered that his wife and the young ranch owner admired each other. Being a despicable villain anyway, he suspects the worst, and is about to disfigure her beautiful features with a Mexican spur when Lopez steps over the threshold and makes him throw up his hands.

From this point on the tragic part of the story becomes subordinated to the comic. Lopez recognizes in the young rancher a friend who once saved his life and folds him to his chest in a tempestuous embrace, prepared to sacrifice everything he has on the altar of his friendship. He is not long in getting at the bottom of things. He discovers that his friend is not only in the hands of an unconscionable land-shark, that the husband has secretly found traces of oil on the farm, but that the current of true love needs to be made to run smoothly — and he proceeds to unwind the tangled skein. How he does it supplies the fun. In his own lawless way he administers the law, which sets all things right and brings the curtain down on a completed romance. Even the marriage knot is summarily dissolved and the husband put out of the way with a nonchalance absurdly naive but entirely satisfactory to the audience.

There is a moment of theatrical surprise when the Rangers are coming and Lopez and his men take their hurried departure with matters in a state of suspense. There is an immediate reaction from the strain on the part of those who but a moment before cowered under Lopez's authority. The Rangers appear with the form of the captured and wounded bandit and ride away again after replenishing their water jugs. The revengeful husband suddenly draws a revolver and points it at his wife and the man he believes to be her paramour. But before he can fire, a shot is heard, the would-be slayer drops dead and Lopez walks calmly upon the scene with a smoking revolver and cigarette. General amazement. How did he escape the Rangers?

"Bah! Dat was not me," he laughs, 'eet was my double. I learned dat in the moving pictures in New York."

Of course "The Bad Man" is fundamentally melodrama and it is Holbrook Blinn as Lopez superimposed upon a serious tho old-time complexity that lends it the interest of comic opera without made. When it comes to mixing gravity with laughter, counterbalancing a frown with a smile, or redeeming harrowing melodrama from the infection of rueful pathos, none is more deserving of praise than this actor.

Be it that Belasco is losing his surety of touch or the influence of his unwonted surroundings, his production of "Call the Doctor" at the Empire has not evoked the usual enthusiasm among his followers. The piece by Jean Archibald is of the lightly farcical variety. Janet Beecher plays a "marriage doctor," a mender of broken links. She practices her art on Charlotte Walker, who has been married seven years without realizing her notions of connubial happiness. The experiment is made successful. It is entertaining enough, but New Yorkers have been accustomed to expect Belasco to do things better than his competitors.

A few doors away from the Empire a new musical comedy is being shown at the Knickerbocker, entitled "The Sweetheart Shop," which, barring some dull intervals and some necessary vulgarity in the closing scenes, has a chance of staying on for a while if some judicious trimming is undertaken. The leading figures in the cast are Harry K. Morton and Esther Howard. The music is above the average in tuneful quality.

* * *

It takes some power of the imagination to picture Ernest Truex in the part of a Texas cowboy, but he fairly gets away with the delusion in "Blue Bonnet." In locality and atmosphere "Blue Bonnet" has something in common with "The Bad Man." The resemblance ends there. As for Truex, considering that he is the most pronounced juvenile on the American stage, in looks if not actually in age, he would seemingly be the last individual to be picked for a cowboy part; but the proof of the pudding is in the eating, as you know, and all is said in stating that tho he has an off-stage fight with a Swede and another with a soldier, in both of which he comes off successfully, he acquits himself quite convincingly as the hero of a dainty little romance in which he plays the role of the protector of his late employer's only child, a pretty little girl to whom the name of "blue bonnet" has been given in affectionate token. There is a distant, shy attachment between the two kids which is fanned into an active flame by opposition and common danger.

Truex's quiet comedy puts the finishing touch to what on the whole is an entertaining performance of a distinctly juvenile class.

Because her father wanted a boy he called the new Irish heroine who is a sort of new and revised edition of Peg O' My Heart, "Paddy, the Next Best Thing"—that is the explanation of this extraordinary title of the comedy at the Casino. It is hardly a play for the critical taste of a first-night audience, but it has that simple charm which seems to appeal to the class of theater-goers that kept Peg running indefinitely. Played by Eileen Huban, there is nothing lacking in display of affection and violence, love and sarcasm, all put forth in a way to endear her to the audience.

Several interesting announcements are made by leading managers. A new comedy by Jerome K. Jerome, author of "The Third Floor Back," is soon to be presented by Mark Klaw. It is entitled "Cook."

Belasco makes the announcement that the new season at his theater will be inaugurated shortly—that is, September 11—with a new play by Edward Knoblauch entitled "One," in which Frances Starr will be the bright particular feature. It is described as "a romance of the psychic and the real." A comedy from the French, by Sacha Guitry, will follow later in the season, and Lionel Atwill will be starred in it. It is entitled "Dobulan."

After a long interval William Faversham is scheduled to make his appearance in New York again and Mark Twain is to furnish the material. It is a stage version of "The Prince and the Pauper."

ENTERTAINMENT IS VARIED

Stars Galore Appear Today and In Coming Plays

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)

EXCEPTIONALLY fine programs have been announced by local theater-managers for the forthcoming week, bringing to fans some of the very latest releases. Celebrating its first anniversary, the Regent Theater has arranged a special bill for the week, foremost among which will be "The Penalty," which opens a four-day engagement Wednesday.

"The Penalty" as we all know, was just released and from accounts given in metropolitan newspapers, it must be a great picture. No particular actor or actress is featured, but the cast is made up of a host of well-known star players.

* * *

Today at the Regent, Leroy Scott's "Partners of the Night" is the feature being shown. There are very few people who don't enjoy a crook story immensely, and this particular one has more than the usual amount of mystery and suspense. Pinna Nesbit, a new Goldwyn bright light, has the role of Mary Regan.

"An Arabian Knight" is the interesting title of Sessue Hayakawa's picture, appearing at the Lyric today. The scenes and costumes are largely Oriental, and a group of beautiful women appear in the cast. This production will have a four-day run in the city.

* * *

The new Sigma theater has a most interesting program for the week. For instance, today starts "Held in Trust" with May Allison in the leading role. Then on Tuesday and for three days will be shown "Should a Husband Forgive" with Miriam Cooper, Fox star. The best of the week, tho, comes Friday, the feature to be shown then being "The Best of Luck" with no less than Jack Holt. Remember Jack in some of Cecil DeMille's recent productions?

A Norma Talmadge production is in store for Majestic patrons today and tomorrow. "She Loves and Lies" is the title of the picture and gives Miss Talmadge a triple role, which she handles just as easily as if she had only one role to portray. A new Alice Joyce production is scheduled to appear the last of the week, being "Slaves of Pride" with Percy Marmont and a superb cast.

"AN ARABIAN KNIGHT"

For sheer beauty of settings and photography, "An Arabian Knight" starring Sessue Hayakawa, is one of the most remarkable pictures of the year, according to critics. It is a Robertson-Cole special and will begin a four-day run at the Lyric today.

The story was written by Gene Wright, and has for its locale, Egypt and the pyramids. There is no one who could have been better suited to the role of Ahmed than the versatile Mr. Hayakawa, who fairly revels in this kind of role and never fails to make a success of it. There are many sumptuous interiors, lovely out-door scenes and many beautiful women, all of which make this picture one that should not be missed.

* * *

"PARTNERS OF THE NIGHT"

Adapted from the story of Mary Regan by Leroy Scott, Partners of the Night" is an interesting picture dealing mainly with criminals. The action is melodramatic, and never wavers until the final scenes. Top-notch interpretations of the principal roles are given by Pinna Nesbit as Mary Regan; William B. Davidson as Robert Clifford and William Ongersoll as, the crooked police commissioner. This strong group of players carry the story over without a flaw. "Partners Of The Night" is decidedly good entertainment, and one of the best pictures ever released thru Goldwyn. It's showing at the Regent for three days, starting today.

* * *

"HELD IN TRUST"

Four blocks of the Hollywood business district were roped off for the sensational scenes of fire apparatus in action for "Held in Trust," which stars May Allison, popular Metro star, and which opens at the Sigma theater today.

The complete equipment of the Hollywood fire department participated in the scenes, and eight cameras were utilized in the filming of the fire trucks as they raced around corners to the blaze. Accordingly the picture is a regular "thriller" and contains many exciting episodes. The story recently appeared in the Red Book as a serial.

* * *

"SHE LOVES AND LIES"

Norma Talmadge has a splendid chance for a comedy portrayal in "She Loves and Lies," a Select Special which opens at the Majestic today. In fact, it is rather a triple role, as Miss Talmadge appears as Marie Callender, known on the stage as Marie Max, an impersonator, and June Daye, a Greenwich Village girl. The two roles outside of her own personality are assumed so that she can marry the man of her choice, obtain a large fortune and replenish the finances of her beloved. How she does all this makes the picture a winner.

ST. MIHIEL SWEPT TWO YEARS AGO

Today Second Anniversary of of Great American Victory.

NEW YORK—Sunday, Sept. 12 is the second anniversary of the battle of St. Mihiel when an American army commaned, by Americans fought for the first time on European soil and by clearing the Germans from the famous salient, won a glorious victory.

In commemoration of that anniversary, the commanding generals of the eight combat divisions of the American Expeditionary Force which took part in the battle have sent messages of greeting thru the American Legion to the men who fought under their command.

At dawn Sept. 12, 1918, began the first all-American major offensive battle of the war which reduced in 48 hours the wedge held by the Germans since 1914.

In the operation the Americans took 16,000 prisoners, 443 guns and vast quantities of material, and established the allied line in a position to threaten Metz. The assaulting troops suffered 7,000 casualties.

The divisions participating were the First, regulars, from all states; Second, regulars and marines, all states; Fourth, regulars, all states, Fifth, regulars, all states; Twenty-sixth, New England National Guard, Forty-second or Rainbow, national guard from 27 states; Eighty-second, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee national army troops; Eighty-ninth, Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota and Nebraska national army troops; Ninetieth, Texas and Oklahoma national army troops.

EXAM IS PLANNED

Y. W. C. A. Arranges for Physical Education for Girls.

A meeting of the physical education committee of the Y. W. C. A. under the Chairmanship of Mrs. Clem Baxter was held yesterday at the Y. W. rooms to arrange the winter schedule. One of the actions taken was that each girl and young woman would undergo a physical examination before entering any of the "gym" classes, and if found defective can enter the corrective class.

All former pupils of dancing and gym work who wish to engage in the work this winter, are required to register at the Y. W. next week, as the winter program will commence the first of October. The Health pageant which was given this spring at Faurot park under the direction of Miss Mary Garford, recreational director will be reproduced the middle of October at Memorial hall.

YOUNG MAN DROWNS

James Elliott Amonette, 23, suffered death from drowning at his home in Lynchburg, Va., Thursday morning. He was a brother of Mrs. James M. Burnette, 781 Weadock-ave. Mrs. Burnette was unable to attend the funeral on account of recent illness, from which she has not fully recovered.

CHILD IS ILL

Miss Gail Crofut, 12, 302 E O'Connor-ave, is ill at St. Rita's hospital from heart trouble. She was removed to the hospital Thursday.

WAXIT, WAXIT, WAXIT, WAXIT.
WHAT IS WAXIT?
ASK THE JONES-BRANSON HARDWARE CO.

ARE YOU LAW-BREAKER? THIS TELLS

Limaites, beware.

Do you know that a fine up to $50 is provided for citizens who interfere in any way with geese empounded by the city.

No, we're not kidding.

An ordinance to that effect was placed on the city statutes in 1873 and still remains there.

And probably that isn't the only law the city has with which you are not familiar. How does this one sound: "It shall be unlawful to throw, cast or deposit, or cause to be thrown cast or deposited, any animal substance whatever, or any other offensive substance in the Ottawa river, otherwise known as Hog Creek, within the corporate limits of the city of Lima." Yes, it's on the statutes of the city; has been there since August 30, 1880 and violation is punishable by a fine not to exceed $50.

Here's another one that the mayor has just announced is going to be enforced. It provides that all "brush, briars, burrs or weeds" growing on property within the city shall be cut by the owner of the property. In case this is not done the service director has the power, under the ordinance to have the offending vegetable matter harvested at the cost of the owner.

What kind of a howl do you think the younger Lima movie fans would put up in case the curfew law were enforced. Lima has one. During the winter months children under 16 are required to keep off the streets between the hours of 8:30 p. m. and 5 a. m., In the summer months however, the youngsters are given a chance to stay out as late as 9 o'clock without being dragged home by a policeman.

Then, do you know why you refrain from working on Sunday. Possibly it's because you wish to keep the Sabbath holy, but if that isn't the case, it's because a fine of $5 is provided as a penalty for doing any unnecessary work on the seventh day of the week. This ordinance has been on the books since November 19, 1873, and is one of the oldest the city has.

These are only a few of the obsolete laws of the city, some of which may be stricken from the records when the administration gets down to the business of revising the statutes as has been proposed.

SCHOOL IS CALLING MANY

Parents are Preparing Boys and Girls for Departure to Various Places of Training

Lima's Younger Set Scattered Thru Many Schools and Colleges Thruout Land

AN unusually large number of Lima's younger members of society will go very soon to various schools and colleges, and many homes are in a whirl of preparation for the departure. This is especially true if the student is leaving home for the first time.

The older girl or boy is looking forward, with real pleasure to meeting classmates, after a separation of more than two months. The younger one, however, is apt to have a "sneaking feeling" that the pangs of homesickness have almost made their appearance before final plans are made and before dressmakers and tailors have completed the college "Trousseau."

Miss Ruth Wells, Miss Abigail Sullivan and Miss Catharine Galvin will enroll at Western College for Girls, Oxford, for their winter of study. Miss Katherine Kahle, Miss Ruth Bachmeyer and Miss Ruth Helms will go to Ohio Wesleyan University and among the Mt. Holyoke College students will be Miss Magdelin Stolzenbach and Miss Josephine Purtcher. Miss Margaret Mehaffey, Miss Annette Roby and Miss Margaret Gregg will study at the Conservatory of Music at Cincinnati. Miss Betty Moulton will go to Miss Capton's School for Girls, North Hampton, Mass.

Miss Katherine Young will attend Virginia College, Roanoke, Va., and Miss Mary Roberts is to be among the students entering National Park Seminary. Miss Anna Bradley will go to Wells College. Miss Mary Katherine Roby has already taken up her studies at the Chicago Conservatory of Music. Miss Rosalie Slagle will be a student at Walnut Lane School for Girls. Mis Helen McGinnis will go to Northwestern University. Among the students at Miami University will be Miss Sara Laughlin, Miss Serelda Wood and Miss Mary Durnbaugh. Miss Beatrice Sherwood will go to Ohio State University and Miss Helen Basinger will continue her studies at Margaret Morrison School, Pittsburg, Pa. Miss Lenore Hyman will be a student at Columbia University.

Healing Meeting Draws Big Crowds At Memorial Hall

Friday evening at 6:30 people began to assemble in front of Memorial Hall awaiting the opening of the Auditorium where it had been announced that Evangelist Bosworth would preach on "Healing in the Gospel" and pray for the healing of the sick and afflicted. After a stirring song service and special musical selections, many who had been recently healed of incurable diseases effectively told how God had miraculously healed them in answer to "the prayer of faith." Those who had been afflicted with paralysis, goitre, blindness, rheumatism, tuberculosis, cancer, and many other diseases gave their testimonies. After the sermon by Evangelist Bosworth the sick and afflicted gathered at the front of the auditorium for prayer and many were healed by the power of God. Owing to the great numbers unable to crowd into the big tent on the Billy Sunday Tabernacle lot, the Healing service Sunday night will be at Memorial Hall at 7:30.

THE ROOM WITH THE TASSELS

By Carolyn Wells

But the matter of going away from Black Aspens was not entirely at their own disposal. The detective, Dan Peterson, had been exceedingly busy, and had wrung a confession out of Elijah Stebbins. It had been a mild sort of third degree, but it had resulted in a frank avowal of Stebbins' implication, in some, at least, of the mysterious happenings that had puzzled the people at Black Aspens.

Stebbins defended himself by the statement that he only rented his house on the understanding that it was haunted. He said, it was reputed haunted, but he knew that unless something mysterious occurred, the tenants would feel dissatisfied.

He said, too, that he saw no harm in doing a few little tricks to mystify and interest the investigators, but he swore that he had no hand in the spectral appearances nor in the awful tragedy of the four o'clock tea.

What he did confess to was the placing of the old, battered candlestick in Miss Reid's room the first night the party arrived.

"I done it, sort of on impulse," he said; "I heard 'em talking about ghosts, and just to amaze them, I sneaked in in the night and took that candlestick offen Mr. Bruce's dresser and set it on the young lady's. I didn't mean any harm, only to stir things up."

"Which you did," remarked Peterson drily. "Go on."

The confession was being recorded in the presence of police officials, and Stebbins was practically under arrest, or would be very shortly after his tale was told.

"Well, then, the first night Mr. Bruce slept in that room, that ha'nted room, I thought I'd wrap a sheet round me and give him a little scare.—he was so scoroful o' ghosts, you know. An' I did, but nobody would believe his yarn. So that's all I did. If any more of them ghosts performances was put up by live people, they wasn't me. Somebody else did it."

And no amount of further coercion could budge Stebbins from those statements. He stuck to it, that tho he had tricked his tenants, he had done nothing to harm them, and his intentions were of the best, as he merely wanted to give them what they had taken his house for.

"You intended to keep it up?" asked Peterson.

"Yes, I did, but after they took things into their own hands, and played spooks themselves, what was the use?"

"How did you get into the house at night, when it was so securely locked?" asked Peterson.

"I managed it, but I won't tell you how," said Stebbins, doggedly.

"With Thorpe's help," suggested Peterson, "or —oh, by Jinks!" he whistled; "I think I begin to see a glimmer of a gleam of light on this mystery! Yes, I sure do! Excuse me, and I'll fly over to the house and do a little questioning. Officer, keep friend Stebbins safe against my return."

Arrived at Black Aspens, Peterson asked for Rudolph Braye, and was closeted with him for a secret session, from which Braye came forth looking greatly worried and perturbed.

Peterson went away, and Braye sought the others. He found them listening to a letter which Professor Hardwick had just received and which the old man was reading aloud.

"It's from Mr. Wise," he said to Braye, as the latter came in hearing. "He's a detective, and he writes to me, asking permission to take up this case."

"What a strange thing to do!" exclaimed Braye.

"Yes," agreed Hardwick, "and he seems to be a strange man. Listen: 'If I succeed in finding a true solution to the mystery, you may name me whatever you deem the matter worth, if I do not, there will be no charge of any sort. Except that I should wish to live in the house with you all, at Black Aspens. I know all of the affair that has been printed in the newspapers, and no more. If you are still in the dark, I should like prodigiously to get into the thick of it and will arrive as soon as you summon me.'"

There was more to the letter but that was the gist of it, and Braye listened in silence.

"I think," he said, as the Professor finished, "that we don't want that detective poking into our affairs."

"I agree," said Landon. "There's been quite enough publicity about all this already, and I, for one prefer to go back to New York and forget it as soon as we can."

"We can't forget it very soon, Wynne," put in Milly, "but I, too, want to go back to New York.

"We can't go right off," Braye told them, "we must wait a week or so, at least."

"Why?" asked Eve, not at all displeased by this statement, for she frankly admitted a desire to stay longer at Black Aspens.

"Oh, lots of reasons," Braye put her off. "But let's settle down for another week here, and then we'll see."

"Then I'm going to tell Wise to come up for that week," declared the Professor. "I don't altogether adhere to my conviction as to supernatural powers, and I want to see what a big, really clever detective can dig up in the way of clues or evidence or whatever they work by."

"Oh, cut out Wise," urged Braye. "We don't want any more detectives than we are ourselves. And Peterson is pretty busy just now too."

It was after the confab broke up that Milly went to Braye.

"Why don't you want Mr. Wise to come?" she said, without preamble.

"Why, oh,—why just 'cause I don't," he stamered, in an embarrassed way.

"You can't fool me, Rudolph," she said, with an agonized look on her pretty face. "You are afraid he'll suspect Wynne, aren't you?"

"Don't, Milly," urged Braye. "don't say such things!"

"You are! I know from the way you try to put me off. Oh, Braye, he didn't do it! He hadn't any hand in any queer doings, had he, Rudolph? Tell me you know he hadn't!"

"Of course, Milly, of course."

"But, listen, Rudolph, I heard some of the things that Peterson man said to you, I listened at the door, I couldn't help it."

"Milly! I'm ashamed of you!"

"I don't care! I'm not ashamed! But,—I heard him say that he thinks Wynne is in league with Mr. Stebbins and that the two of them brought about all the mysterious doings——"

"Hush, Milly! Don't let any one hear you! You mustn't breathe such things!"

"But he did say so, didn't he, Rudolph?"

"I won't tell you."

"I know he did! I heard him."

"Then forget it as soon as you can. Trust me, Milly. I'll do all I can to keep suspicion from Wynne. But, do this, Milly. Use all your powers of persuasion with Professor Hardwick, and make him give up his plan of geting that detective up here. That Wise is a wise one indeed! He'll find out every thing we don't want known, and more, too! Will you, Milly, will you,— if only for Wynne's sake—try to keep that man away?"

"I'll try, Rudolph, oh, of course I will! But what can I do, if the Professor has made up his mind? You know how determined he is."

"Get the girls to help. Don't breathe to them a word that you overheard Peterson say, but manage to make them do all they can to keep that detective off. If you all band together, you can do it. Wynne won't want him; I don't; I don't think Mr. Tracy will; and if you women are on our side, Hardwick will be only one against the rest of us, and we must win the day! Milly, that Wise must not come up here,— if you value your peace of mind!"

"Oh, Rudolph, you frighten me so. I will do all I can, oh, I will!"

JUST A GIRL

BY JANE PHELPS

MEN AND MARRIAGE

Even now I shudder when I think of those days in the restaurant; those first days when alone I tried to keep up my courage. I knew well that as soon as Mary came I should bear things better, yet I felt terribly selfish that I had said anything to her. If it should turn out badly, and then Rosenstien should refuse to take her back, I would feel so guilty.

All day Sunday we washed and ironed and cleaned. Without saying very much, Mary seemed to realize that her untidiness worried me—that she would be more of a lady in my estimation if she were neat and tidy. It was strange, when you think we were the same age, how eager she was to do as I wanted her to. Just a hint was enough to make her forswear the habits of her lifetime.

"You know what rea l ladies do, I don't," she would say. "I know what them kind what pretend to be and ain't, do—lots of them—but when it comes to the real thing I'm as foolish as a baby. And then," she would add, "I do want to be a lady sometime more'n anythin' in the world. But till you come along I had a swell chance!"

Mrs. Lynch was as pleased as could be when she found Mary was to work in the same place with me.

"It's better for the both of yees," she declared. "One of yees can take care of the other. Not sayin' but you both be good girls either. But Chicago is Chicago, just loike any other big city, and girls can't be too careful. Just don't believe any shilly-shallin' men and you'll be all right. If I hadn't swallowed the things Joe Lynch told me, hook, line and sinker, I wouldn't be a rentin' rooms in me ould age, he had a smooth tongue, Lynch had, begorra! Loike most of the Irish—mesilf included—and it shure didn't take him long to git round Kitty Haggerty, that's me. A few smooth words, a kiss, and then the praste. Didn't take long, but begorra the repentin' has been long enough to make up. The Good Book sez, or did I hear it somewheres, that thim what marries in haste, repints at their leisure. True it is, ivery word! So look out, girls—Chicago men has mighty coaxin' ways."

Mary and I both laughed, while I assured her she need not worry about either of us getting married just yet.

"It's a troso I'll have before I step out," Mary declared, "and a fine one too. I ain't goin' to get married but once, and I'm goin' to have all the trimmins, ain't you, Zena?"

"I never expect to get married, Mary," I returned. Someway, I didn't feel like laughing. The thought of Kenneth Lawrence flashed thru my mind. What would he think of me now, waitress in a cheap restaurant, taking five and ten-cent tips?

"Sure you will some day," Mrs. Lynch, who had lingered, broke in. "But take your time, Miss Zena. It's awful to marry wrong."

After she left the room, Mary said:

"Did you mean that, Zena, about not getting married?"

"Yes, Mary."

"Honest injun, don't you ever expect to marry no one—ever?"

"No, Mary."

"Did you have a follow what loved you die, like they do in stories?"

"No—but Mary, who would want to marry a poor unhappy girl like me? Then, too, I have promised to take care of Mother—you know, to make her a home."

"I've been thinkin' a lot of that Zena. Don't it sort of fit in with what Mrs. Lynch told us about hurryin' No fellow wants to marry a whole ready-made family, I guess. But perhaps some day we'll find a fellow what might help—if we loved us enough."

"That's just it, Mary— If he loved us enough. I guess not many young men we are apt to meet would do that—not men we want to know."

"Beats all, don't it, Zena, how they act. Well, never mind, some day we'll have good positions, then we'll show them where they git off."

"Come, run home and go to bed," I said, pointing toward the hall. "Remember, we have been laundresses all day; tomorrow we have to be waitresses."

DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

BY PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

IT SEEMS TO LINSEY THAT EVERYONE BUT SHE IS MARRIED AND HAPPY

August 28—Rainy day today, very gloomy, and I feel more than that—much more. Mother says if I'd darn some of my stockings when I get these "spells" I'd find that I had less time for dark and dreary thoughts, but that's what she would say. No understanding whatsoever of the innermost soul of a girl. Some women were not intended to have daughters at all, of this I'm convinced. What they should have are sons, nice, healthy, unimaginative, an thoroly conventional sons. However, I have nothing to do with the ordering of all this.

Matter of fact I am plain homesick—yep, just that! Never would have believed it possible, and cannot understand same now, for half of the home is with me, and yet—well, there's my dad. I do miss him most terribly, and I just feel that he misses me quite as hard. I know that he has been sending me messages across the sea for the last few days now, and I have been doing the same to him.

Had such a scrappy little letter from Jack today that it made the day and my disposition all wrong. I miss my boy most, most ghastly much. I'm so lonely and homesick for him that for almost nothing I'd run away from here and jump on the first steamer going home, and just arrive in Los Angeles and say, "Barkis is willin'"—and get married there and then. Dear me, I don't see why a girl cannot follow her inclinations in these matters of the heart, especially when she is feeling quite unhappy, and her lover does not know it!

Jack explains in his letter that some big business was just breaking; meant our whole future maybe; and he could only write a few words to tell me how much he loved me, and needs me at moments such as he was going thru when he wrote. Well, here I am way over this side of the Atlantic wishing that he were with me at those, my bad moments, and that's all the good it do s either of us!

I don't give a hang any more about independence, nor the lonely life of a careerist—not a bit; never want to be alone a moment after I am married. There now.

That little cat Barbara would give me the grand ha! ha! if I were to appear from the clouds in Los Angeles, so it can't be done. Maybe the Lord will provide.

Aunty and I went to the Cecil for tea this afternoon, and we did see the best looking men. If I hadn't been feeling so blue about things I should have flirted for all I was worth that instinct dies hard in the very young! Besides, what's the use of commencing any more affairs of the heart with any man at all? It all leads to misery, and so many disappointments.

Aunt Cecile looked no end pretty; quite took the shine from me, but I didn't care—I felt very old, broken, and sophisticated today. Not so much so now, as at tea time, for I've had a good dinner and bed resting all evening, and that does change one's point of view about one's self quite considerably.

The music was lovely at the Cecil and we lingered as long as we thought proper over it. Of course the heart of my aunt is beating its gayest and highest—and why not? HE is to arrive most any hour now. Woe is me, that I should have to sit by and just look on, while my own heart fal's lower and lower. I'll say it's hard luck. Couldn't even work today, and I have been having my best time ever here up to the present, with my pen, pencil and paper!

Had a nice long letter from Arlina—Ludovici—yep, she's been having the time of her life honeymooning thru Italy and France with her new husband, Vincenzo. Crazy about him, and glorious; happy in her new life. There you are—everyone seems to be happy but me.

Science Now Makes Amazing Discovery of How Any Woman Who Is Nervous, Irritable, Careworn and Run-down May Often Quickly Increase Her Strength and Make Herself Far More Lovely Without Cosmetics or Stimulating Drugs.

By asking yourself the questions listed above you may be astonished to find in how many ways you are lacking in the radiant health, vitality and loveliness which gives such fascinating charm. Read in this article why women everywhere are talking about the amazing discovery of VITAMON which contains those long hidden life-giving substances of Nature the vitamines.

"When you see a woman who never tries to better herself—a woman who has no other interest than remaining in the same old rut and is willing to go through life without ever making her dreams come true, you will always find that the lack of interest and enthusiasm are caused by a lowered vitality and a weakened physical condition.

"Like thousands of others, she is probably fretting, and worrying over supposed ailments, restless at night and nervous in the daytime vainly wondering what is destroying her health and happiness. In reality every organ of her body may be crying for nourishing vitamines such as are found in certain raw vegetables and grains and which Nature undoubtedly provided to build buoyant health and preserve youthful beauty.

"Since Modern Science has at last brought forth the amazing facts of how people become weakened and run-down, pale and haggard, careworn and prematurely old—often simply because of the lack of these life-giving substances—the vitamines—most astonishing results are being reported everywhere. The remarkable experience of nervous, delicate, sallow complexioned women—worn, fretful and unattractive—would surely seem to show that practically any woman, who is not afflicted with some organic disease may often quickly build up the radiant life, splendid vitality and matchless beauty of perfect health simply by getting sufficient vitamines into her system. Yet, even tho you were to select the very foods which do contain vitamines, you would probably not get enough to do you much good, for present methods of preparation and cooking rob these foods of their vitamines before they reach our tables. As a result the body often fails to get the nourishment it requires for keeping up a fullness of strength and vitality, building firm flesh and tissue or giving clearness and beauty to the skin. But with the introduction of Vitamon, a concentrated form of vitamines combined with other health-giving elements, there is no reason why any woman should not expect to be just as healthy, beautiful and well-proportioned as Nature intended. By taking only a short course of Vitamon I am convinced that many a pale, anaemic, delicate woman may often quickly build herself up to a renewed vim and power and marvelously enhance the beauty of her appearance."

Note:—Every woman should find keen interest in the above statement by Dr. John J. Rudolph, a former Health Commissioner, late of New York Hospital Staffs and a Graduate of the University of Baltimore. If after using Vitamon you are not entirely satisfied with the results and are not convinced that it has been worth to you far more than you paid for it, your druggist will refund your money and the trial will cost you absolutely nothing. Vitamon may now be obtained in this city from all leading druggists such as Mykrantz, Hunters, Red Cross Drug, Baldwin's Central Drug, Cunningham Drug. Adv.

GIRLS TESTIFY AT CHICAGO PROBE

Called as Witnesses in Campaign Fund Investigation.

ONE GAVE CHECK FOR $40

Solicited by Democrats, Claim—Resume of Week's Work.

CHICAGO—After hearing scores of witnesses tell of Republican and Democratic fund-raising efforts, the senate "slush fund" investigating committee had adjourned its Chicago probe Saturday night. They will resume the investigation in the east on September 22.

Saturday's session was devoted to investigating campaign fund raising in Chicago and charges that girl federal employes in South Dakota had been asked to contribute to the Democratic war chest.

Miss Jessie Barchard, Minneapolis, employed in the internal revenue office at Aberdeen, S. D., testified she received a letter signed by E. H. Waterbury, asking her to call at an Aberdeen hotel to discuss arrangements for raising Democratic funds. Miss Barchard said she contributed two checks for $20 each.

Eunice Coyne, a reporter on an Aberdeen paper, testified that other girls have been asked to make contributions. Waterbury, she said, claimed to represent Clarence H. Mee, of Centerville, S. D. J. Walter Mee, son of Clarence H. Mee, is internal revenue collector at Aberdeen, Miss Coyne said.

The committee's main work here was to investigate charges made by Governor Cox, Democratic presidential candidate in a speech in Pittsburgh, that the Republicans attempted to obtain a huge "corruption fund."

A resume of the testimony obtained by the committee, as it applied to Cox's charges, follows:

$15,000,000 CORRUPTION FUND

In his Pittsburgh address, Cox charged that the Republican national organization planned to raise $15,000,000 for the presidential campaign of 1920.

On this point, Fred W. Upham treasurer of the Republican national committee, testified that the "outside maximum," which the Republican national organization ever planned to raise for the national, state congressional and senatorial campaigns, to be used between June and November, 1920, was $4,879,000. This, he said, included $3,079,000 for the use of the national committee; $1,200,000 to be used in state campaigns; $400,000 for the congressional campaign and $200,000 for the senatorial campaign.

Upham said a quota list totaling $4,837,500 for the national committee, drawn up early in 1919, was to pay all expenses of the national committee from December, 1918, thru the presidential election of 1920. of this $3,079,000 represented the budget for the presidential election period, from July 4, on. Upham said $2,150,000 of this sum remains to be raised.

CITY QUOTAS

Cox read a list of 51 cities in 27 states, which he said had been assessed quotas totalling $8,145,000 by the Republican national organization.

Upham; Will Hays, Republican national committee chairman, and Harry M. Blair, Upham's assistant, denied the national organization ever fixed city quotas, but said chairmen of state ways and means committees did. The quotas named by Cox for Cleveland, Toledo and a number of other cities were correct, testimony showed.

BIG INTERESTS

Cox said that the checkbooks of men high in the money world were open to the Republican campaign fund solicitors.

Wilbur W. Marsh, Democratic party treasurer, produced receipts, showing that John D. Rockefeller, John D. Junior and other very wealthy men, connected with big corporations, had pledged moral and financial support and had contributed to an enterprise for the spread of Republican propaganda launched by William Barnes, of New York

Hays, Upham and Blair denied the Barnes enterprise was in any way connected with the Republican national committee.

$1,000 LIMIT ON GIFTS

Cox and E. H. Moore, his personal representative here, charged that $1,000 limit put on individual contributions by Hays, was not adhered to.

Upham testified that 18,515 contributions, 39 were more than $1,000. He said he favored "taking off the lid" up to $10,000, but was overruled. Blair also said he favored increasing the limit, and drew up a plan known as form Number 107, providing for contributions of $5,000 to $10,000, but said it was rejected.

INFLATED QUOTAS

Cox and Moore charged that the quotas as fixed for states and cities were inflated in some cases twice, and that as a result the Republicans were actually "aiming at" collections of $9,000,000 instead of the $4,879,000 testified to by Upham.

State and regional chairmen of the Republican fund-raising organization testified that state and county quotas were inflated from 66 to 100 per cent. They stated this was done because "to hit the top of the trees, they had to aim at the moon". They did not expect to raise the expanded quotas, they said.

HARDING TO LEAVE PORCH SEPT. 25

G. O. P. Leader May Go as Far as Pacific Coast.

MARION, Ohio — A deep conviction that the country is responding to his fight against the league of nations as framed at Paris, was voiced Saturday night by Warren G. Harding, summarizing the political situation in a frank talk with newspaper correspondents at the close of the most stirring week of his campaign.

"My judgment is that the sentiment of the country is crystallizing against the league of nations as negotiated at Paris with confidence that under a Republican administration, we are going to do our part," Senator Harding said.

IS OPTIMISTIC

The Republican presidential candidate discussed the political situation with utmost frankness and appeared in a very optimistic frame of mind over his reception in Minnesota and the marked enthusiasm of delegations coming here since his return.

MAY GO TO PACIFIC

It is virtually certain that the front porch campaign will end September 25, and that from then on the Republican nominee will be on the stump. A trip to the Pacific coast is under serious consideration and will be made if Harding's managers accede to his desire to speak in all western states where there are senatorial contests and in Washington, where there is none.

The rigid insistence on the front porch campaign up to now, it was said here, was due to Senator Harding's reluctance to become embroiled in primary factional fights. But these are practically cleaned up and hence no further reason remains for staying close to Marion, it is said.

FEELING RUNS HIGH AGAINST SLAYER

Mob Trouble Feared in Death of Kentucky Girl.

HARLAN, Ky.—Down here in the hilly borderland of Kentucky, a sheriff and his deputies gathered Saturday to protect with their lives the life of a man whose arrest they have ordered.

The prisoner is H. C. Winnes, veterinarian for the state of Kentucky and former meat inspector of the city of Cincinnati, now charged formally with the murder of Miss Laura Parsons, 25, teacher at the settlement school of Pine Mountain, near here.

The body of the girl, attacked, murdered and finally thrown over a cliff of rock, was found early Friday.

Winnes, hearing a warrant had been issued for his arrest, notified officials Saturday he was in Frankfort and would return to Harlan to help solve the crime.

The sheriff and his deputies in Harlan-co, are not convinced Winnes is the man wanted.

The people of this county, however, want justice brought at once to the slayer of their mountain school teacher. Feeling is running at high ebb and for this reason the sheriff and his deputies are prepared for emergency.

PROBE IN THOMAS DEATH ORDERED

Poisoning of the Movie Star to be Investigated.

JUDGES DEMAND AUTOPSY

Husband Testifies She Took Drug Thru Mistake.

PARIS — The body of beautiful Olive Thomas must be mutilated by surgeons' knives to satisfy the law that her death from poisoning was accidental.

This was declared Saturday night by the judges after the police, at the inquest in the mysterious death of the American motion picture star, had accepted the physicians' report that the girl had drunk from a bottle of bichloride of mercury by mistake. They ordered an autopsy to be performed Monday to determine the amount and kind of poison she swallowed.

The judges' action was taken after the case apparently had been closed, and created a sensation, particularly among the members of the American colony and in French cinema circles.

HUSBAND TESTIFIES

Miss Thomas' husband, Jack Pickford, testified that, after spending the night dancing in the notorious Montmartre district, they returned to the Hotel Ritz. He said that after he went to bed, his wife went into the bath room to get a bottle of medicine which a French physician had prescribed for a nervous ailment. By mistake, he said, she drank from the bottle of poison. Her frightened scream brought him to her side. He summoned medical help and she was taken to the American hospital in Neuilly, where she died Friday.

Aitho Pickford maintained that both he and his wife were sober when they returned from dancing, the tetsimony of hotel attendants was to the effect that they were both "somewhat intoxicated."

REFUSE TO CLOSE CASE

The entire investigation had been in the hands of Police Commissioner Catrou, who announced Saturday afternoon that it was completed. After the inquest, he made his report to the judicial authorities, who refused to close the case until an autopsy had determined the exact nature of Miss Thomas' death.

Arrangements had been made to send Miss Thomas' body home on the Mauretania, which is scheduled to leave Cherbourg for the United States a week from Saturday. It was believed by Pickford's friends that the autopsy would disarrange these plans.

The publicity given the tragedy has provided ammunition for French vice-crusaders—few in number—and plans were being agitated Saturday night for a drive to abolish the resorts of the Montmartre, while the memory of Miss Thomas' death is still fresh in the minds of the people.

Montmartre has grown in gaiety since the war until its revels have shocked even the most hardened habitues. Cafes and dance halls have been mere masks for resorts that have been maintained in open defiance of the police.

M'SWINEY IS STILL CONSCIOUS

Lord Mayor Suffering Severe Pain, His Friends Report.

LONDON.—While Sinn Fein headquarters here Saturday was issuing bulletins asserting that Lord Mayor MacSwiney, on hunger strike in Brixton prison, was very near death, the government remained firm in its determination not to release him. A late bulletin Saturday night said he had "completely collapsed," and that his mind was growing dull.

This was the thirtieth day of MacSwiney's fast. Prison physicians admitted his condition was serious, but pointed out men have lived ten or 15 days longer than MacSwiney has so far without food. Under orders of the prison officials, food was offered to MacSwiney, at intervals, but he refused to take it. At 9 p. m. he was reported suffering pains in the head and thruout his body, altho still conscious.

That MacSwiney's body is virtually dead and that his mind is now dying, was the view of members of his family and friends. The next development, they believe, will be unconsciousness. Saturday the lord mayor's face was ashen and he had great difficulty in enunciating words, according to friends who saw him.

He tried to dictate a message in reply to that of the hunger strikers in Cork, who urged him to hold out to the death, as they said they were determined to do, but he was unable to speak distinctly and his sentences were slow and halting. His sister wrote down the words as he uttered them. He finished by whispering:

"Tell them—victory is assured," and then his eyes closed and he lay exhausted.

COLLECTOR HELD UP BY AUTOMOBILE GANG AND ROBBED OF $2,000

DETROIT — Clyde H. Moore, a collector for the Standard Oil company, reported to the police Saturday that he had been held up by two men in an automobile and robbed of $2,000. Moore said the men, in a large green touring car, drove alongside his machine and at the point of revolvers ordered him to stop, took the money and drove away.

HEADS OF EATING HOUSES SEIZED

Restaurant Men Arrested in Ohio's Crusade on Prices.

PROFITEERING IS CHARGED

State-wide Movement to Cut Food Cost is Started.

CINCINNATI — A statewide movement to reduce price of food in eating places from hotel dining rooms to dairy lunch counters, was disclosed here Saturday.

Reports from Cleveland were that city officials were to meet representatives of various types of public dining places on Wednesday to discuss profits.

From Columbus came word that Maurice Langan, secretary to State Fair Price Commissioner Pfeifer was at work on price schedules for restaurants.

At Toledo the fair price commissioner claims to have discovered extensive profiteering in restaurants and is considering prosecution.

The first active step in the movement was taken here when the proprietors of a restaurant were arrested on the charge of profiteering in the sale of food.

One of the defendants is John Burckhauser, a city councilman. They will be tried Monday before United States Commissioner Hurley.

The federal grand jury will investigate a number of cases of alleged excessive charging which have been submitted to them.

The principal complaints here are directed against vegetable and food prices.

DRY ISSUE PAST, COX ASSERTS

Answers Question as to His Stand on Prohibition.

ARENA, SEATTLE, Washington—The prohibition issue "has passed by and become an event of yesterday," Governor James M. Cox said here Saturday night, in winding up two days of stump campaigning in Washington so vigorously that his voice has become husky.

Cox's reference to prohibition was the first in any of his speeches and was prompted by inquiries in state Republican papers and from many women as to his stand on the liquor question.

ATTEMPT TO DIVIDE

The alleged letter of George T. Carroll of the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association, calling upon its members to support Cox, Cox charged, is an unavailing attempt to divide the friends of world peace and progress but declared that it will be unavailing.

The governor's statement on the question follows:

"As a progressive in government, I know when an event has passed by and become an event of yesterday. The reactionary rarely does. The friends of world peace and the friends of progress will win this election and any attempt to divide them on any question will be unavailing."

QUESTION ASKED

Cox was asked directly whether he favored a modification of the Volstead law or whether he would veto any move by congress to dampen the act, but he did not answer this question directly.

Cox, during the last few days, has encountered evidences of strong prohibition sentiment, altho those close to him charge it was largely "propaganda work from Republican sources, in the hope of embarassing the governor."

At Devil's Lake, N. D., Tuesday Governor Cox told a woman that he had always voted dry and that he would not interfere with the 18th amendment.

U. S. CRUISER FLOATED FROM ROCKS IN BALTIC

WASHINGTON—The U. S. Cruiser Pittsburg, which ran on the rocks recently in the Baltic Sea off Libau, was floated Saturday and is now entering the harbor of Libau, the navy department was advised Saturday night by Vice-Admiral Ruse, commanding the warship.

BOY DIES TRYING TO SAVE KIN

Three Members of New York Family Burned to Death.

FATHER IS BADLY INJURED

Lad Perishes Attempting to Rescue Mother and Sister.

GREAT NECK, N. Y.—Albert Kaminski, eight years old, gave up his life Saturday in a vain effort to save his mother and baby sister in a fire which destroyed their home.

His father was believed to have been fatally injured in trying to save the boy.

Leo Kaminski, 48; Mrs. Catherine Kaminski, 46; John, six, Catherine, four, and Albert, were sleeping in the second story of their home, when they were awakened by the shouts of neighbors. They found the entire first floor in flames.

Kaminski thrust his wife and daughter out upon the roof of the porch, telling them he would get a ladder, and dashed down the blazing stairway with Albert and John in his arms. Before he could return with a ladder from the barn, the porch collapsed, carrying the woman and girl with it.

With a scream, Albert rushed into the flaming debris, where his mother and sister had disappeared. His father followed him. Both were dragged out by neighbors, the boy dead and the father dying. The woman and child's body also were recovered.

'VACATION' MAKES BIG COAL CUT

Anthracite Strike Threatens Fuel Shortage, Officials Say.

WASHINGTON. — The first three days of the "vacation strike" of anthracite coal miners reduced production more than 40 per cent according to a report for the week ended September 4, made public Saturday by the United States geological survey.

Total anthracite production that week dropped to 1,084,000 tons as compared with 1,818,000 tons of the preceding week. At that rate, anthracite production this week will have totalled less than 500,000 tons, officials said Saturday.

A continuance of the "vacation strike" for another week or two may create a shortage of domestic fuel this winter, it is believed.

President Wilson and Secretary of Labor Wilson Saturday night were hopeful that the miners would end their vacation Monday and return to work, living up to their agreement to abide by the award of the anthracite coal commission, as explained in the letter which President Wilson sent to the strike field late Friday.

The president and the secretary took the position that the strikers could not expect a reopening of the award unless they showed their willingness to abide by their agreement. No effort will be made to mediate at least for the present, it was said Saturday night at the office of Secretary Wilson.

Attorney General Palmer has ruled that the miners in taking their "vacation" have produced no evidence indicating a violation of the Lever act.

SIX STILLS TAKEN

Preachers Help Raid "Moonshiners" at Ironton, Ohio.

IRONTON, Ohio — Ironton police with the aid of federal officers and two ministers of the gospel, raided four "soft drink" establishments and several houses on the river front Saturday and captured six stills, and 500 gallons of "moonshine" and a quantity of mash.

Ten alleged "shiners" were arrested in the raid. Plans for the raid had been in progress for some days and Friday night three federal officers arrived in the city and with the assistance of the local men procured warrants for the arrest of suspects, search and seizure warrants and other necessary papers.

VOLSTEAD RULED OFF G. O. P. TICKET BY COURT

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Representative Andrew Volstead, father of the prohibition law bearing that name, was ruled off the Minnesota Republican ticket for re-election Saturday by the state supreme court.

The court reversed the decision of the lower court in the contest brought by Volstead against Rev. O. J. Kvale, winner of the primary election, in which the lower court held that Kvale had violated the corrupt practices act and declared Volstead the nominee.

HE'S NEW BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO FRENCH REPUBLIC

Baron Hardinge

Baron Hardinge will succeed the Earl of Derby as English ambassador to France in November. The baron has served his country officially at Washington, Constantinople, Berlin, Paris, St. Petersburg and other capitals. He was governor general and viceroy of India and under secretary of foreign affairs.

HEIRESS IS FARM "HIRED MAN"

Indianapolis Girl Quits Rich Home to Rake Hay.

GLOUCESTER, Mass.—An unusually attractive "boy" dressed in overalls and with hair closely cropped, was raking hay at Upland Farm, near Ipswich, Saturday, when Bernard Richardson, a store-keeper, passing by, identified "him" as Miss Louisa A. Fletcher, 17-year-old Indiana heiress, who disappeared from her parents' cottage Thursday afternoon.

Thursday afternoon, Miss Fletcher procured a pair of overalls and, after eluding her governess, Miss Fritz, and a maid, hurried to the beach and after donning the overalls, cut off her hair and started on her adventure in a borrowed dory.

She rowed 12 miles across Gloucester harbor and up the Ipswich river. Abandoning the dory, Miss Fletcher took to the country. Thursday night after "dining" 'on green apples, the girl slept in a barn. Friday morning she began a search for work. The first place she tried was the estate of Isaac Thomas. She was unsuccessful in her first attempt. She was directed to Upland Farm and applied to William Shipburn for work as a "hired man." The latter did not penetrate the girl's disguise and hired her to rake hay.

Miss Fletcher's love of outdoor life and adventure and her dislike of the "yoke of discipline," as she described it, led her to seek a life in which she believed she would be happy. When Miss Fritz, her governess, Marshall Casey and two detectives, went to the Upland Farm for the girl, she was apparently perfectly contented and happy in her new work. She appeared much chagrined at being found but made no objection to returning to the police station here.

Stoughton Fletcher, who is president of the American bank in Indianapolis, is well known in the middle west as a sportsman.

WOMAN IS CHOSEN

Appointed as Commissioner of District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON — President Wilson Saturday appointed Mabel T. Boardman, for many years a member of the executive committee of the American Red Cross, to be a commissioner of the District of Columbia, effective next Wednesday, on the retirement of Commissioner Brownlow, resigned.

The appointment makes Miss Boardman the first woman to be a member of the commission which directs the entire government of the district.

AUTOS KILL 18 DURING AUGUST IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND—Automobiles took a toll of 18 lives here during the month of August, according to the police bureau of records. In the same period 283 persons were injured by machines.

Street cars killed one and injured 65. So far this year nearly 85 persons have been killed in traffic accidents. The August toll is the largest of any one month in the city's history.

ROME DEFIED BY WORKMEN

Rioters Open Fire on Royal Guards From Barricade.

MOWN DOWN BY ARTILLERY

Streets of Triest Are Filled With Soldiers.

TRIESTE — Government troops employed artillery Saturday to quell rioting by workmen and Socialists. Two shots were fired, killing three.

Disorders, which started several days ago with a minor clash between Socialists and nationals, continued thruout the day. Striking workmen, defying the order of the chamber of labor to return to work, barricaded themselves in the San Giacomo district and opened fire on the royal guards. They were dispersed by the artillery.

The slav element in the city apparently was playing the leading role in most of the riots.

The streets were filled with soldiers who pitched their tents in the parks.

MORE PLANTS SEIZED

ROME.—Occupation of industrial plants by workers was extended Saturday to textile and shoe factories.

Reports received here stated that employes seized several textile factories in Turin and a number of shoe manufactories in Milan. In the latter city additional chemical plants also were taken over.

A despatch from Bologna said that the railway workers union had issued orders to stop all trains transporting soldiers in northern Italy.

While these events were occurring, representatives of the workers and employers were continuing their negotiations in Milan in an effort to effect a settlement of the present industrial situation which grew out of seizure of factories by metal workers to prevent a lockout and gradually spread to the chemical, mining and agricultural industries.

These negotiations continued all day. The manufacturers offered a wage increase of 60 to 80 cents a day, but refused to grant any pay for the period the men have been on strike, contending the men had taken the initiative. The workers representatives rejected this conditional proposal.

Open fighting has broken out in the attempt of the Italian communists to control the industrial situation, in many parts of Italy, establishing virtual soviets in some of the biggest factories.

ITALY'S SITUATION STILL IN BALANCE

(BY J. W. T. MASON)

NEW YORK—Italy's efforts to counteract a Bolshevik revolution without bloodshed, is still in the balance, with the chances favoring a successful outcome of Premier Giolitti's plan of non-intervention.

The workmen have failed to start the factories going since their seizure. The situation therefore, is no better from the standpoint of production than when the metal employers themselves gave the impetus to the present movement by declaring a general lockout. Premier Giolitti's astute permission to the workers to hold fast to the factories without fear of military intervention, is in effect a challenge to the workers to keep up production by themselves alone.

PLAN PROVED FATAL

This is the weapon which the Italian government has invented to fight Bolshevism at home. If the Italian workers can manage the factories, maintain a maximum output and take care of capital charges without assistance, Premier Giolitti's plan calls for a frank acknowledgment of their genius.

But, Russia's experience has shown that any such attempt to do away with financial specialization and expert direction is fatal. The working men of Italy are beginning to realize the same thing.

The Italian Bolsheviki who have seized the factories have already discovered that executives and technical experts are fully as able to tie up an industry by striking as the workingmen themselves.

COMPROMISE PROPOSED

The revolutionary character of the entire affair is in reality Premier Giolitti's new way of meeting the Bolshevik menace. The limited power possessed by the workers, has been demonstrated without any bloodshed. The necessity for co-operation between show workers and executives is being shown without an intervening struggle which would have invited a red terror and the destruction of the factories in question. Giolitti is now advising the factory owners to come to terms with the workers. It is probable the terms will have to include profit sharing in some form, before normal production is restored.

DUNN SEES GREAT BUILDING YEAR

Says Prices Will Be Higher for Lima Realty.

PROPERTY GOOD INVESTMENT

Quoted Lower Than Here Elsewhere He Declares.

A. J. Dunn, well known Lima real estate dealer, in an interview Saturday, regarding real estate values in Lima at the present time, said:

"Never in the history of the City of Lima has realty been more attractive to the investor. There will be only one change in the price of local real estate and rentals, and that is that there will be a very noticeable advance during the year 1921. The renter who delays buying a home, and the business man who requires a site for his business and delays purchasing, awaiting a general reduction in prices, are both due for a surprise that will be expensive. The situation in Lima is rather unusual. Rentals seem high based upon the present valuation of Lima real estate, still a careful comparison of prices being received for Lima properties would show that Lima real estate is priced from 25 to 30 per cent lower than real estate in other Ohio cities, which have a population only one-half as great as the city.

"If these deductions are true, and they are the opinions of men who are in aposition to know—the only people in Lima today who are making a mistake are the ones who have money to invest in Lima real estate and delay doing so hoping for lower prices. Lima is one of the few cities in this section of the U. S. A. which enjoys a steady increase in values and fortuately has never had a real estate boom.

BOOM NOT FEARED

"Booms are always followed by a costly reaction and we have nothing to fear on this score. The recent advance granted in freight rates and the fact that the railways of the country are about to spend millions of dollars for new equipment assures the continued prosperity of our Locomotive Works for several years.

"The new ruling of the Federal Reserve Board, lifting the ban from commercial truck paper assures the continued prosperity of our two great motor truck factories, and the fact is conceded that our Locomotive Works and our motor truck plants are the backbone of Lima's industrial life.

"The steel is now on the ground for the Lima Foundry and Machine Co. plant which will be in operation shortly and give employment to a great many men. The engineers are now working on the ground upon which will be erected the Union Tank Car plant, which is another valuable asset to Lima.

"This is presidential year and money has been close everywhere in the country for a few months and will continue so until the first of the year at which time business will resume.

"America's orgy of extravagance is passing, and thrift is coming into evidence. Extravagance has never been associated with the purchase of real estate investments, therefore we have no inflated prices in Lima real estate market to overcome.

BIG BUSINESS REPORTED

"My companies are the largest holders of both improved and vacant real estate in Lima, and we are putting on no reduced price sales, but on the contrary we know that Lima real estate will be worth more money in 1921 and still more in the years to follow. This speaks well for our confidence in Lima's future. So far during the year 1920 we have sold $340,000 worth of close in down town property and $210,000 worth of residential property and vacant lots.

"With the passing of the country's spending orgy deposits are commencing to accumulate in our savings institutions and very shortly money will be available for new construction work. New buildings will ever again be produced at pre-war prices, therefore, those who take advantage of the situation by purchasing their investments now are the people who will reap the greatest profits later on."

Exchange and sale of property in and near the business district of Lima was made during the past week by Doctors J. H. Blattenberg, Rufus Neely and N. I. Coon, well known Lima business men. Dr. Blattenberg sold his property, a three-story brick building, E. Spring-st to Rufus Neely, for a reported consideration of $60,000.

Mr. Neely in turn sold the property to N. I. Coon, who is holding it as an investment. Dr. Blattenberg likewise purchased from Mr. Neely the residence property northeast corner, North and McDonel-st, and several lots in various sections of the city.

* * *

A residence deal of the past week was the purchase by Mrs. Elizabeth Herold, 116 N. West-st of the property at the corner of North and McDonel-sts, opposite Franklin school. The consideration was said to be $15,000. The property was owned by Dr. J. H. Blattenberg.

* * *

Not for many months past has there been such a decrease in the number of building permits, as well as in the amounts as during August, 1920. The comparison of August of 1919 with the same month this year, shows a very decided drop off in the number of permits issued for large amounts. The total amount the past month was only $5,020, and a half of that was for one permit issued to W. L. Russell, to erect a small business property at the corner of West and Market-st, formerly occupied by the Thornton Mitchell home.

Permits issued during March and April of this year exceeded the hundred thousand dollar mark. July of this year the total was $22,650.

Work on the handsome new Argonne hotel, corner Elizabeth and High-sts, is progressing as rapidly as possible, and it will be ready for the formal opening early in January, according to F. E. Woods, Lima contractor, who is superintending the construction of the hotel. Practically all of the outside work has been completed, and carpenters are now engaged in finishing the floors, and doing the inside work.

NEW YORK.—Pessimistic influences prevailed during Saturday's short session of the stock market, prices giving way in almost every quarter after an irregular opening. Mexican oils were under special pressure, and so rails and shippings, while coppers cancelled Fridays gains. Leaders of the steel and equipment divisions also reacted in the absence of support. Further weakness of foreign exchange, with the British rate at lowest quotations since last March, gave impetus to the decline, which ranged from 1 to 3 points. The closing was heavy. Sales approximated 200,000 shares. Bonds were irregular but the new French issue rose to a premium of 1 1-8 per cent on the curb.

Trading was unusually light even for a week-end session at the opening of Saturday's market. Price changes were restricted to fractions which in no instance exceeded half a point. Some of the rails, oils and coppers eased while others in the same groups advanced. Announcement overnight of very large gold imports brought no relief to foreign exchange. Early quotations for British French and Italian bills were lower.

WHEAT PRICES ON UPWARD MOVE

Bullish Sentiment in Market—Corn and Oats Easier

CHICAGO—Wheat prices started stronger Saturday, there being a bullish sentiment in the market on account of the easier tone in coarse grains. Opening prices which were 1-4c to 1c higher; with December $2.47 and March $2.42, were followed by a slight decline but soon recovered the loss.

Corn started under pressure with a strong commission house being a good seller of December. After starting unsettled with prices 3-4c lower to 1-2c higher, with December $1.19 to $1.19 3-8, the December delivery touched around $1.18 1-2 when buying against the high price bid checked the decline.

Oats were dull and easier with corn, starting 1-4c to 3-8c lower and then displaying further weakness.

Strength in hogs was reflected in provisions which averaged higher.

At the finish each delivery of wheat showed a net gain of 1c, December closing $2.47 and March $2.42 3-4.

The corn close was 1-4 to 7-8 net lower with December $1.18 3-4 to $1.18 7-8.

NEW YORK SUN REVIEW

NEW YORK — The Evening Sun financial review Saturday said:

Saturday's short session of the stock market proved a dull summer affair and presented no feature of particular interest in any quarter. There was little change in the price level at the opening. Initiative was entirely lacking and accordingly the list turned heavy thru neglect.

Later there was something of a stiffening tendency, but the movement was on the whole too aimless to disclose either strength or weakness. The principal element of interest had to do with incoming gold shipments, a movement which has suddenly assumed considerable proportions, recalling war days. The portions, recalling war days. The pressure.

Oil shares were irregular in the first hour. Mexican Petroleum and Pan-American flopping about with a considerable spread. Elsewhere there was little further change. Traders merely marked time to the closing.

CHEAPER CLOTHES FOR SPRING

Lima Dealer Says Readjustment of Prices Coming

That prices of clothing will be slightly lower in the spring as a result of a surplus of wool on hand by the clothing mills, was the prediction of N. L. Michael, of the Michael clothing Co., Saturday. Michael declared this decrease in prices might be as much as 15 or 30 per cent.

He said a gradual readjustment of prices will undoubtedly take place, to the benefit of the consumer.

The American Woolen Co., has announced prices for spring already, which are from 15 to 20 per cent lower than in the spring of 1926.

It is understood the prospect of a business revival is receiving some consideration in financial quarters, apparently based in part on reports of the increasing success of the railroads in breaking up accumulations of freight. It is clear, according to financiers that when such a revival takes place it will be on a lower price basis than existed when the reaction began in May.

Bradstreet's index number of commodity prices on Sept. 1, shows an average decline of 4.5 per cent from the level of Aug. 1 and of 13.9 per cent from the "peak" of Feb. 1. Weakness in cotton and cotton goods and in provisions accounted for much of the recession.

MARSHALL FIELD REVIEW

Marshall & Company, in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was smaller than during the corresponding period of last year.

Orders from salesmen for immediate delivery were less than the same week a year ago, but larger than for several weeks preceeding. There were about the same number of customers in the market.

Collections were not up to the standard of the same period of last year.

PROMPT SHIPMENT

Fenestra Window Contract Promptly Filled

CANTON, Ohio, Sept. 11—Natural light, in great quantities, is required in all factory buildings where precision work is done. Building No. 11, of the Gilliam Manufacturing Co., just recently completed, is one of the best lighted and ventilated factory buildings in this city.

This building is used as a grinding room for the Gilliam taper roller bearing division and adequate daylight is essential. Light is admitted to the workrooms through Fenestra Window Walls, four sash to the bay—six panes high, in the walls of the building and three monitors in the sawtooth roof. Mr. Elmer D. Steiner was the architect and builder.

"We are more than pleased with Fenestra in our factory," said Mr. E. T. Steiner, President of the Gilliam Mfg. Co. "It has proven very satisfactory in our foundry plant, built three years ago, and in our new plant, No. 11, recently completed. We heartily recommend Fenestra for any type of factory building."

"The manner in which the contract on these windows was handled by the E. F. Hauserman Company, of Cleveland, was a so very satisfactory to us, particularly because the sash was delivered at a time when most building materials were being delayed. The prompt delivery of the Fenestra windows aided us a great deal in getting our new building completed on time," he went on to say.

RUSS OFFICIAL PRAISES FENESTRA WINDOWALLS

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 11—"Now that we have seen the advantages of Fenestra Windows in our new addition, we regret very much that the old plant is not likewise equipped," is the manner in which W. H. DuRoss, General Manager of the Russ Manufacturing Company, W. 83th and Walworth Avenue, expresses the company's regret that their old building is not equipped with Fenestra WindoWalls.

The Russ Manufacturing Company has just enlarged their plant, giving it a total of 150,000 square feet floor space. The well lighted interior of this addition to their plant is an excellent example of the advantages that window walls offer to modern manufacturers.

The Russ Manufacturing Company is one of the largest manufacturers of soda fountains and factory cafeteria equipment in the country.

THERE'S a lot of satisfaction in being able to get your steel sash—when you want—and need it.

Fenestra comes direct from our Cleveland Warehouse to your job—on time.

Popular types of this economical wall material are kept constantly on hand in Cleveland Warehouse—and can be shipped a few hours after receipt of your order.

DEMOCRATS FILL COMMITTEE

Harmony Marks Meeting to Name New Leaders.

STRONG MEN ARE SELECTED

Redistricting After Suffrage Passes Makes Vacancies.

That the Allen-co Democrats intend to wage one of the warmest political battles in the history of the county was indicated Saturday afternoon at a meeting of the Central Committee. The meeting was held at the court house Practically every committeeman was present. The gathering was called for the purpose of electing committeemen to fill vacancies caused by the establishment of new precincts both in the city and county.

Lehr E. Miller, chairman of the executive committee, following the meeting said:

"I have been in politics in Allen-co for some years, but never before to my knowledge have I seen committeemen turn out to attend a meeting like today's Not only that, but harmony was the watch word."

PARTY IN HARMONY

Probably at no time in the history of politics in this coun , has the party been so harmonious, members declare. At the initial meeting a chairman and secretary was agreed upon and sanctioned by the entire assemblage Saturday's gathering was a repetition. Names of proposed committeemen were placed before the meeting, and members passed upon them. Nothing was questioned.

In the city 20 new precincts have been established. This brings the number up to 58. Seventeen new precincts were made in the county. This now has a total of 45 Committeemen were elected to serve in the old precincts at the recent primary election When the new precincts were made it created 37 vacancies.

The executive committee immediately endeavored to chose men best fitted to fill these vacancies This being done the names were submitted for the approval of the central committee.

Every member of the executive committee has expressed himself as greatly pleased with the selection They believe they have perfected an organization which will wage a history-making battle in the county. Each new member, according to Miller has been selected with care, and the old committeemen have examined the list in an effort to make it as strong as possible.

Joe Madigan, wheel horse of the party, Saturday expressed his delight at the showing which has already been made by the committee

WILL ATTEND MEETING

Preparations are being made by Earl Ludwig, Chairman of the Allen-co Cox Club to take a large delegation from here to Spencerville Thursday night. A club will be formed in that city at that time.

Democrats in and around Bluffton are working hard, according to advices from that town. There will be a huge rally held there in the near future. C. Henry Smith, chairman, of the program committee of Richland-ip Democratic club, is endeavoring to secure a speaker of national reputation to deliver an address at the rally. The date of this event will be decided upon in the immediate future.

CURIOSITY SHOP IS BIG SAFE

Prisoners Careless About Belongings When Leaving Jail.

The safe in the Allen-co sheriff's office is a modern curiosity shop. Or, perhaps, it might better be called a bargain sale counter of old clothing.

It is typical of the treasures in a modern curiosity shop—the safe in the county jail. In it are found articles left by prisoners which have never been claimed.

"You can tell a lot about men just from the things taken from their pockets when searched before sent to their cell," Sheriff Charles W. Baxter said "There are bundles of all sizes and shapes, waiting to be identified and claimed "For instance, if you'd like a new overcoat for the winter—just take your choice," Baxter said, as he opened the door of the safe.

And there was any number of overcoats, ranging from fairly good ones to the cheap kind

But as the reporter was of the feminine type, the thought of appearing in a new overcoat next winter did not appeal

There are keys and dice and a few coins. Baxter said usually the men had only a few coins when they were brought in. But the women were never broke They usually have $25 or $30 hid about them, usually in their stockings.

The sheriff declared that names change a lot. Sometime years after a man has been in jail he'll come back for his belongings. By that time he has had two or three names and has changed his appearance considerably. Each applicant is forced to identify his belongings before the sheriff will turn them over.

IN NEW OFFICES

Wheatley Co. now in fine Suite in Citizens Building.

Hundreds of Limaites accepted the invitation of the Wheatley Co. to visit its new offices, embracing the entire second floor of the new Citizens' building, Saturday.

After a great success at the old offices in the opera house block according to A. W. Wheatley, the business reached such a volume that new and larger quarters were absolutely necessary. The new offices are said to be one of the most modern and elegantly appointed investment offices in northwestern Ohio

Speaking of the activities of the company, Wheatley declared such an enterprise fills one of the most urgent needs of any community.

"I take it," he declared, "that the average laboring man is entitled to a chance to invest his savings where he can have safety and receive a return of seven per cent or more We attempt to fill that need in the community, and give advice, after making thoro investigation, of any stocks or bonds placed on the market."

A speaker of national fame is to be obtained for the occasion, he said.

The ninth Harding and Coolidge club of the county was organized Saturday night at Westminster, according to Trubey.

EXHUBERANCE IS HIGH IN THIS MAYOR'S TOWN

GIRARD, O.—When whiskey sold for 10 cents a shot Mayor Thomas G. Blackstone, also justice of the peace was content to soak enthusiastic drinkers $5 for excessive exhuberance.

Liquor now sells for 50 cents a drink in Girard—at least so the mayor-justice hears. Legally it can't be done, you know. So he announced a new schedule of fines. From now on every person arrested for being drunk will be fined $25 for the first offense. After that the fines will climb $10 a clip until the law-breaker is broken of drinking or broken in fortune

First Guests Arrive in Lima in an Airplane.

LAND AT PROPOSED FIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Pierson Visit Mr. and Mrs. Allgire.

Lima's proposed municipal aeroplane landing field was given its first practical test Saturday afternoon, when the first time in the history of the city, week-end visitors to Lima flew from their homes, just for the sake of seeing friends.

It was an aeroplane couple that made the flight—newlyweds, they were, and they came to visit newlywed friends.

Even their honeymoon was an airplane affair.

Mr. and Mrs O. W. Pierson of Troy, are the visitors, and Mr. and Mrs. William Allgire, 315 Lincoln-ave are host and hostess.

It was an all of a sudden affair, and the trip was even more all-of-a-sudden.

Mrs. Pierson, having learned the value of the airplane as a means of speedy locomotion—since she met her husband in one, and eloped with him to be married in another, and finally went on her honeymoon in a flying machine, decided that she wanted to see an old school mate friend, Mrs. Allgire was the friend.

TRIP IS ARRANGED

So Mrs. Pierson, Saturday morning, spoke to her husband about it, then phoned Mrs Allgire Mrs. Allgire insisted that the Piersons come Saturday instead of Sunday

Since Mr. Pierson is sales manager for the Curtiss Co., in this district, and since airplanes are such a speedy means of getting about, Mrs Pierson promised Mrs Allgire that she would come as soon as possible—and come she did ,on the wings of the twentieth century.

The landing was made in the field just east of the Allen-co Fair grounds, the place that has been suggested as the Lima municipal flying field The Pierson's had instructed the Allgires as to the arrangements that would be necessary to make the landing safe

The Allgires, complying with their instructions, were at the field half hour early, and had placed a bed sheet torn in two and transformed into a wind indicator.

A little while later, the machine bird carrying the guests appeared upon the horizon, and ten minutes later, Mrs Allgire, nee Roween Kahle, was rapturously welcoming her school mate friend, Mrs. Pierson, nee Marian Simpson of Greenville, Miss.,—and a friendship of six years was renewed

IMPRESSED WITH FIELD

Mr. Pierson, who was formerly an aviator with the American Expiditionary force in France, was impressed with the Lima landing field. In fact he was so impressed with it that he submitted to persuasion on the part of the Allgires to remain in Lima for a number of days

Mr. and Mrs Pierson became acquainted while Mr. Pierson was in training in an army aviation camp in the south. Some time later, the airplane elopment was planned, and the two flew to Nashville, Tenn., where they were married. From there, they went to Cleveland via the airplane route on their honeymoon and finally they settled in Troy.

PRICES LOW, SAY RESTAURANTEURS

Believe Commission Will Not Find Profiteering Here.

That no profiteering will be found in restaurants of Lima was the consensus of opinion of restaurateurs interviewed Saturday, following announcement of J. B. Dugan of the Allen-co fair-price commission that a fair-price list for restaurants is expected to arrive early next week. It was the general opinion that an investigation will show restaurants to be conducted on the closer margin of profit than any other business in the city.

Chairman Dugan declared Saturday as soon as the fair-price list compiled by the state fair-price commission arrives, a meeting of the Allen-co commission will be called to arrange for enforcing its provisions.

L. Y. Strayer, of the Manhattan restaurant declared Saturday his business is open for investigation at any time. "The only way it is possible for restaurants to reduce prices from what they are at present is for the materials we use to be reduced in price," he declared.

"Absolutely not," said Wilson Hughes, of the Congress cafe, when asked if he thought it probable that there may be profiteering in Lima restaurants. "I am paying $40 a week for help that I paid $18 three years ago" he continued, "and $10 and $12 a week for girls whom I used to pay $5. I think the majority of the restaurants in Lima are barely making a living, and some of them are not hardly doing that."

Eda M. Ballard of the Franceda cafe: "I don't think there is profiteering in Lima. I don't see thoexactly how a scale of prices can be made for all restaurants as the cost of overhead and the quality of food used in different restaurants it not the same."

STOVE CO. PLANS EARLY START

Will Not Wait for Erection of New Building.

Stoves are to be manufactured in Lima within the next 60 days.

This announcement was made by Fred B. Williams, a stockholder in the Vapo stove Co. which has planned to build a factory in Lima.

"The ground has been purchased along the D. T. and I railroad for the location of the factory," Williams said saturday, "but the company is not going to wait until this building is completed before it commences the manufacture of stoves. A small amount of the machinery will be installed in temporary building and manufacturing will be commenced in less than 60 days."

Fifty men will be employed in the factory at the start, according to Williams.

A meeting of the members of the Lima Chamber of Commerce has been called by President George Early on Wednesday evening, September 15 for a demonstration of the stove to be produced by the company.

JEWISH SERVICES TO BE AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The congregation of Temple Beth Israel will conduct the New Year services at the Congregational Church on S. Elizabeth-st near Market-st, on Sunday evening, September 12, at 8:15, and the following morning at 10 a. m.

Mr. Druker of Cleveland, an eminent army chaplain recently returned from abroad, will conduct the services. The public is invited.

The membership of Temple Beth Israel is keenly appreciative of the loyalty and true Christian spirit of Rev. Kyle Booth and the officers and members of the Congregational Church for offering their church in the hour of need as the Temple is still in an unfinished condition due to a destructive fire of a few months ago.

CITY BONDS LIKELY TO REACH PAR

Improved Money Conditions May Aid Sewer Work.

That the city's six per cent paper will reach par within the next 90 days was the prediction of City Auditor David L. Rupert Saturday.

"A gradual improvement in market conditions has been noted since Labor Day," Rupert declared. He based the improvement on the fact that eastern buyers are beginning to return from their vacations, and heavier purchases are resulting. Lima's six per cent securities are now selling around 98 per cent, he said.

The $224,000 bond issue for the construction of the Central-ave relief sewer has not yet been disposed of, it was learned. The auditor said arrangements have been made with the contractor doing the work to accept the city's six per cent notes until the bond market improves. By this arrangement, work on the sewer, which it was feared for some time would have to be closed down, is being kept up.

This issue of sewer bonds, according to the auditor, are the only securities for which the city has pressing need of disposal at the present time.

HANDCUFFS AND LOCKS CAN'T HOLD THIS MAN

EVERETT, Wash.—Everett police have discovered Houdini's rival in the person of William Gibson, to whom shackles, handcuffs and steel bars are but temporary and slight obstructions to liberty. Gibson was arrested on a minor charge. A few hours after his incarceration he made his way to freedom. Extraordinary strength in his arms enabled him to pry open a heavily barred gateway

Gibson was captured shortly thereafter and handcuffed and shackled Three minutes after the officers left his cell he was observed by a roundsman tampering with his cell door He had expertly released every lock. Gibson again was manacled to the cot, almost unable to move. Five minutes later an officer saw the man well on the road to freedom. He had torn loose a small piece of wire from the cot, using his teeth, and had already "picked" one of the handcuffs.

The rest of the night an officer kept Gibson company.

DOPE SHEET NOW FAVORS COX

Certain Electoral Votes Total 185 Against 104 for G. O. P.

UNCERTAIN STATES MAY RACE

Bryan Working for Congress to Protect Volstead Act

News and Times-Democrat Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Twenty-three states of this grand and glorious Union e doubtful today as Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee, proceeds on his record-breaking tour and as Senator Warren G. Harding, the Republican nominee, returns home from his first excursion away from his front porch at Marion since his nomination at Chicago three months ago.

Let Will H. Hays, Republican chairman, make what claims he will, bet George White, Democratic chairman, say the tide has turned definitely to Cox, but take it all with a large handful of salt.

The real low-down on the situation is that the country is going to see a horse race. "Hard-hitting Jimmy" Cox, the Democratic stake horse, has pulled up alongside of Warren G. Harding, the easy-going. The twenty-three doubtful states range from New Hampshire on the East to C lifornia on the West. They have 242 life-sized electoral votes. And they are not going to cast these votes for either man without getting pretty well acquainted with him and what he stands for on a number of things.

* * *

On actual electoral votes certain the Democrats have the best of it. The solid South and the three western states of Moutana, Nevada and Arizona give them this leeway. The G. O. P. can claim but seven states as certain—Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Vermont. The certain Democratic states have 185 electoral votes. The sure Republicon states have 104. To the Democratic total might be added the 42 electors from Minnesota, Colorado and Ohio, which are showing definite Democratic leanings; this would bring the Democratic total to 227. The 45 electors from Illinois, New Mexico, Rhode Island, South Dakota and Wyoming, which have definite Republican leanings, bring the G. O. P. total to 149.

But Minnesota, Colorado and Ohio, which are flirting with Cox may smile on Harding on election day. The Democrats say they will carry Illinois, South Dakota and Wyoming, which now look Republican.

At any rate, the 185 of which the Democrats are sure and the 104 certain Republican, are both far short of the 266 necessary to elect. Therefore, the Democrats to win must get 81 more. The Republicans to win must pick up 162 electors in the doubtful states.

* * *

In one of the uncertain states it is possible that the electoral vote may be split. Maryland and California are two other states which sometimes split their electoral vote. But in the other state the winning candidate usually has the solid vote of his state no matter how small the majority.

The list of certain Democratic states includes: Alabama 12; Arizona 3; Arkansas 9; Florida 6; Georgia 14; Kentucky 13; Louisiana 10; Maryland 8; Missouri 18; Mississippi 10; Nevada 3; North Carolina 12; Oklahoma 10; South Carolina 9; Tennessee 12; Texas 20; Virginia 12; total 185.

Two of the states looked upon as certain Democratic — Kentucky and Arizona—have Republican governors, elected upon local issues, but there is little question that they will be found in the Democratic column this fall. On the other hand Kansas, now figured as sure Republican, went for Wilson in 1916. The Democrats believe the women and the pro-league vote will give them Kansas. Neither will the Democrats concede Michigan, Massachusetts and Maine.

However, these states may be put down as certain Republican—Iowa 13; Kansas 10; Maine 6; Massachusetts 18; Michigan 15; Pennsylvania 38; Vermont 4; total 104.

And here is the big doubtful list in this year when party lines are less tightly drawn than ever before and the voters are interested in men and issues: — California 13; Colorado 6; Connecticut 7; Delaware 3; Idaho 4; Illinois 29; Indiana 15; Minnesota 12; Nebraska 8; New Hampshire 4; New Jersey 14; New Mexico 3; New York 45; North Dakota 5; Ohio 24; Oregon 5; Rhode Island 5; South Dakota 5; Utah 4; Washington 7; West Virginia 8; Wisconsin 13; Wyoming 6; total 242.

* * *

Democratic leaders believe they can get the additional votes they need from some combination of the following states — New York, New Jersey, Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, Connecticut and Wisconsin. The three states where the hottest campaigns will rage are New York, Ohio and Indiana. Strangely enough, the little state of Connecticut will come in for the most heated battle ever waged for its seven electoral votes. The sudden prominence of Connecticut is due to the fact that the Yale faculty of Republican professors have formed a Cox club, determined to carry the state and with the women voting thesy have an excellent chance. Moreover, Homer S. Cummings, who is strong in the Nutmeg State, will contest for the seat now held by Senator Brandegee.

In Ohio, the real fighting sector, Cox and past performances and the better organization of the Democratic forces, would seem to possess the advantage. New York, tho not absolutely vital to the success of either party, has 45 votes that are very desirable. New York City leaders aver that they will go out of Greater New York with a 250,000 lead for Cox— a lead large enough to overcome any plurality Harding may roll up in the upstate section. New York upstate leaders even have hope of bringing a Democratic majority down to the Bronx to meet the Democratic majority certain to come out of the nation's metropolis. The hope of carrying upstate New York is based on the popularity of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the fact that labor upstate seems to be for Cox this year, whereas Wilson in 1916 had only the railroad labor vote. Unpopularity of Senator Wadsworth with the women also is relied upon by the Democrats to help their ticket.

* * *

On the other hand, the Republican belief is that the Irish and German vote in New York City will be strong for Harding, thus cutting down the Cox lead in New York City to a point where what they figure as the G. O. P. margin upstate will overcome it.

Democrats also are optimistic over the chances in Indiana. Hughes carried the Hoosier state over Wilson in 1916 by a bare 7000 majority. Harding ran a poor last in the Presidential primary in Indiana this year, while Cox was the state's first choice for the Democratic nomination. The Wisconsin situation is so jumbled that anything may come out of it, and therefore the Democrats are hopeful of getting its 13 electors. Minnesota, which went for Hughes in 1916 by 357 votes seems to leaning toward the Democrats of the League issue.

Of the twenty-three doubtful states California, Colorado, Idaho, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Utah, Washington and Wyoming with 81 votes went for Wilson in 1916. Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, New Jersey, New Yark, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, West Virginia and Wisconsin with 161 votes went for Hughes.

Were these states to vote as they did in 1916 it would give Cox 266 exactly enough to win, and Harding would have 265, making it an even closer race than in 1916. But they will n ot vote a sthey did in 1916. Thus, if the Democrats failed to carry California, Colorado, Idaho, Nebraska, Wyoming, New Hampshire and Washington, which they won in 1916, and took New York, which they lost four years ago, they would have 266 or enough to win. If they lost all of these states and New York, a combination of Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, New Jersey and Connecticut, all of which went for Hughes four years ago, would save them.

Any one with a good sharp pencil and a penchant for figures can make combinationts all night. But the big fact remains that no one knows with any definiteness how the twenty-three doubtful states are going to vote, and the result of the 1920 election is not going to be known until the ballots are counted.

* * *

Casting aside all thot that he can do anything directly for or against the candidacy of Governor James M. Cox, William Jennings Bryan, thrice nominee of the Democratic party for President, is going to devote himself to the task of trying to have elected to Congress a sufficient number of official "drys" to keep the eighteenth amendment in effect.

Mr. Bryan was here this week, conferring with Anti-Saloon League officials with whom he has been intimate in a business and other ways for a long time. Not a word was permitted to pass his lips except that he had nothing to say on national politics. However, news of his dry endeavors leaked out.

What Mr. Bryan is engaged to work for is a Congress which, irrespective of party, will put the question of booze above and beyond everything else. His particular work in the campaign, is to try to insure a big majority in the House and Senate opposed to any weakening of the Volstead enforcement law.

The details of Mr. Bryan's proposed activities are to be withheld until the meeting here the latter part of this month of the fifteenth annual convention of the International Association against Alcoholism. A few of these, however, he let slip during his conversations with newspapermen.

Mr. Bryan said he was still a Democrat, and gave the distinct impression that he intended to remain the same, no matter where his dry footsteps led him i n this campaign.

"Whatever I may feel it my duty to do this fall," he said, "I do not expect to leave the Democratic party. I expect to work in and thru the Democraic party for securing of such as I believe to be good for the country." He said he expected to remain silent.

MICHIGAN FARM LANDS

Don't Shut Your Eyes

MANY A MAN LISTENS SO HARD FOR OPPORTUNITY TO "KNOCK" THAT HE IS BLIND TO THE REAL CHANCES THAT PASS BEFORE HIS EYES.
A REAL CHANCE is offered the farm-seeker in the hardwood districts of Antrim and Kalkaska Counties, Michigan. You can get from 10 to 160 acres close to schools, markets, railroads, near lakes and streams at the remarkably low figure of $15 to $35 per acre. Buying a farm in this locality does not mean paying out at once a large sum of money.
OUR LIBERAL CREDIT PLAN makes it possible for most any man to own a farm. A small down payment gives you a start—the balance in easy monthly terms. You can grow most any crop that can be produced in the north central states. Our farm experts give you advice and help you with your farming problems free of charge. We do not sell swamp or stony land and the oil and mineral rights are yours without reservations.
EXEMPTION FROM TAXES for five years is granted by the State of Michigan to the settler who makes some improvements on his land. A clause in our contract gives you free insurance protection while paying for the land. We loan money in proportion to your investment to help you with your building plans and to buy livestock, machinery, etc. A full Warranty Deed and Abstract of Title protect your ownership of the land. We are colonizers, as well as land sellers and know from experience just what the settler needs. DON'T SHUT YOUR EYES to the opportunity of today. Look into the future and see where you will be five years from now. Will you have advanced—or will you still be working for other fellows? When old age comes will you be protected or will you be dependent on friends or charity? Is there any future in your present station in life? Good land at a low price is becoming scarce. You must act now.
START YOUR INVESTIGATION by writing today for our big free illustrated booklet. This will place you under no obligations and should be of much interest to you. Ask for our next excursion date. Come and see for yourself what others have done—what you can do—on a farm of your own. Our modern clubhouse has accommodations for both men and women, and from there we show the land free of charge for automobiles and guides. Remember that delay costs money. ACT NOW.

HEARINGS CLOSELY WATCHED

Politics in Ohio is Warming Up For Final Dash

By MARCUS

COLUMBUS—We are come to that season when the voice of the straw vote taker is heard in the land. The old Cincinnati Enquirer has begun to give its daily accounts of how the voters in bank, office, street, mill, mine, factory and farm feel and is even trying to give us a peep into the kitchen and boudoir section of politics by lining up the feminine vote. Soon the Columbus Dispatch will swing into line and begin to make their tests public. And there will be comparisons between the two. More than that there will be divers persons standing upon the street corners who will assert that the polls are crooked, that they are inaccurate and that they are gotten up for the purpose of influencing the election and that they amount to nothing.

But history in this will be forgotten. The polls have never failed and if they do this year, it will be a big surprise for these enterprises in journalistic endeavor rest thousands upon thousands of dollars. That is a feature upon which the thoughtless have never seriously concentrated. That they sway the voters in a calculable dream. Four years ago the Enquirer poll came nearer to the correct result than the Dispatch forecast but both were right on the main proposition. Hundreds of thousands of eager partisans will check them up this year. If they do not go right, persons are at liberty to denounce them both but it would be well to bet no money if both point in the same direction.

* * *

It may interest many to know that there is an actuarial balance in these newspaper polls upon which a volume may be written. Study of the election figures of past years is necessary in getting up the lists of places to be polled. Studies with reference to particular issues is also necessary. For instance, too many polls in sections in which the people are predominantly German in descent might throw the thing out of balance. So, it might be said, that too many in Democratic or Republican communities might destroy the balance. But the percentages are interesting, too. The changes show the drift and after the polls have run 30 days or so and have attained a balance they will establish a trend in one direction or another. In figuring on the situation, it is well to keep in mind that the Democrats can afford to lose eight percent over their vote in 1916. This furnishes a base line for calculation.

* * *

Notwithstanding that the persons who occupy stations in court houses and city halls and who are naturally most active in partisan affairs do not like the exposures of campaign funds, the Chicago hearings are, no doubt, the center of gravity in political life today in all the nation. More eyes are cast on what the five senators do with the witnesses before them than are cast on the speakers whether they be speaking from the back end of a train or from a secluded front porch to specially invited and personally conducted delegations. It supplies—does Chicago—the melodramatic and the emotional of which Americans are fond. It is supplying that in liberal quantities and the fresh revelations from day to day are read and devoured line for line. Each bit of proof will be cataloged in the popular mind and the issue cannot be switched away from the center stage in Chicago. Now, the persons at all political headquarters won't admit this and there is a reason for their refusal. No managers like to have campaign funds made an issue for it is their nature to desire as much "glue" as possible. It looks like "scabbing" on the political union. But, after all, who cares seriously about political managers? They are like the policemen, needed to keep the peace but dismissed when campaigns are over. In season they are leaders and outside mere "bosses," and the wise ones know it.

* * *

The element of citizenship affected by slush fund revelations is that which never comes around county, city, district, state or national headquarters. Whoever can read this element can carry the elections. The political managers rally the regulars but other influences muster the great body of independents who are really moved by disclosures of funds out of proportion to legitimate needs. It is an offensive for the independent element which Governor James M. Cox started. It is for the behoof of this element that Will H. Hays denied. Whether both were wise as mere matters of expediency, time alone will tell. But no man in politics, least of all young men, will be foolish enough to defend corruption funds or swollen barrels. That time passed when Truman H. Newberry was convicted. As was said by this old beacon light of progress—The proof's the thing. To that assertion renewed faith is plighted. Wherefore, in solemn wisdom, it is repeated: "Watch Chicago." There the real battle rages.

* * *

For the same reason that the Senate of the United States took up the Newberry case and the charges of a heavy pre-convention jack-pot and for the same reason that the Senate is now at work following up the leads given by Governor Cox found necessary to investigate the Harry L. Davis fund. Here one may digress a moment to say that Moore is enjoying himself in Chicago. Edmond H. is in every newspaper over this broad land and in the very center of the spotlight. And Oh! How he does enjoy that! He had a lot of fun at Washington when he stated the inquiry into the Ohio primary contest and brought out that money flowed freely here, thanks to the backers of General Leonard Wood and to the necessity of combatting his efforts. Now he is having more fun than ever. A lucrative law business can go hang until the Chicago fuss is over with. That's certain. But as to Davis, the Attorney General is called upon to investigate by Davis's rejoinder that the matter is mere partisan propaganda. If it is, that will be shown by the inquiry and if it isn't silence will not cure the matter.

* * *

The charge of partisanship is scorned by L. Benton Tussing, the Columbus attorney, who made the demand. He was an anti-James Ross candidate for mayor a few years ago and fought thru a new charter to adoption. It seems to be the only case of primary question for if there were any others, the supposition seems to be that the men responsible were sufficiently punished in defeat. The Democrats did make some inquiry into Frank B. Willis's expense accounts but they found nothing more than the $17,000 or $18,000 which his supporters spent for him and they have no demand for further explanation. From necessity, then, they are contrasting this outlay with $530 spent by W. A. Julian, his opponent, and asking what he intends to do about Newberry and Willis is silent, Julian thinks the people are interested while Willis, it seems does not. They are seeking to read the popular mind, the "doctors" as George White put it. The people will kill or cure in November.

It was quickly decided this week that there will be no litigation over the question of the referendum of the old Cragge bills, series of 1913, which were killed by the General Assembly and Governor on the plea of the Anti-Saloon League. Secretary of State Harvey C. Smith made it plain that he did not pass the moral or legal power of the General Assembly. It seems, tho, that his decision will be taken as a precedent and there is no court to set it aside it will become instance of administrative interpretation. The Home Rule Association, originally pringing the referendum, should have acted on the matter to insure its permanency on the point of law involved. It is this: Can the General Assembly interfere with a referendum or referred measure while it is pending before the people? The answer is that it can under the default of the backers of the referenda on the series 1913-Crabbe bill. The Home Rule Association seems to have departed from its original position of defense of the referendum in recent months since its federal constitutional amendment referendum was given the knockout in Washington.

* * *

Senatorial invasion of Ohio began this week when Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, tall, handsome and direct in speech and method came here to deliver the Democratic gospel. The Republican senatorial representative will be Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, not so tall, but as able and competent as the Oklahoman. Borah is to measure long-distance swords with Governor Cox, speaking at Dayton the same night that Cox speaks in Borah's home city. The affair, evidently, pleases both sets of followers. Borah and Cox are old personal friends and exchange of amenities may be expected. But what gives the greatest satisfaction is the placing of the issue squarely with no "Wiggling or wobbling." Cox will talk for the League without apology and Borah will be as frankly against it. Both men have marked a milestone in the "great and salemn referendum."

* * *

While the meetings that will be featured in Ohio during the coming weeks are, of course, largely political in nature there are other gatherings commanding the widest attention. On September 27 some army engineers in Toledo are to hear arguments on the location of the proposed Ohio River-Lake Erie Canal, the biggest public project now pending in Ohio. The Central Inland Waterways Association is to have direction of the meeting. There are three routes that will be urged the Cleveland-Marietta, the Sandusky-Portsmouth and the Cincinnati-Toledo. The middle one from Sandusky to Portsmouth never seems to have been considered seriously but the others are warm in their claims for position. The Toledo-Cincinnati crowd thought it had things its own way until the easterners made them take notice that other things were in the wind. Cincinnatians expect to draw a picture of what will be possible when the Toledo-Cincinnati route is completed. They expect to show that western Ohio would become a second Belgium of industry. The easterners must meet this claim. Zanesville and Cleveland probably will make the big noise for the east. Cincinnati presents ten reasons that will be hard to overcome, one of them being those "coal waves" down the Ohio of which the inscribed scribe has been writing.

* * *

That the Socialist vote for Eugene V. Debs will be larger than in past years seems now to be strongly indicated. The adherence of many of the pro-Germans to him has been assured but there is another element which will be drawn into his camp. It is that of the element which took offense at the war and abhors the consecratism of the Republican ticket and intends to enter a protest against the Wilson administration. Then there is the Bolsheviki element which looks upon Debs, in prison, as a "martyr" to the cause of the dictatorship of the proletariat. An administration, playing politics, would have dismissed him but he seems fated to remain in prison. It is doubtful now whether his role as a martyr could be changed in the minds of his followers, some of whom doubtless are sincere.

MEN SHOULD DO HOUSEWORK

London Doctor Insists They Help Their Wives

BY EARLE C. REEVES.

LONDON.—Mere man in these islands where laws still give that individual all the best of the bargain has read for years, and with joy, the various allegations regarding Cousin Sam's henpecked state.

And now comes Dr. T. Baillie Smith, medical officer for artillery, and says man's hours of work have been shortened, he should do some of the housework, so that the woman's hours may be shortened also.

It is America's time to chuckle, at last.

Up speaks Mrs. Pember Reeves and says: Why, yes, but to make the advice practicable, there's the rub.

"The great thing women have to learn is how to organize," says Mrs. Reeves. "If a woman has a husband who is not handy at home she would sooner do the work herself than bother with him."

A fine opening, that. But she coppers another chance. She adds:

"Some men can arrange flowers, while others would be better scrubbing floors. I certainly do not think it makes a man effeminate to help in the house."

Mr. Turner may have endangered his job as secretary of the Comrades of the Great War by agreeing to the new dictum, but restricting its scope to lighting the fire and cooking the breakfast before going to work. But then a part of his job is to find housework for ex-soldiers who can find no other employment, so perhaps he speaks with safety.

The investigations into the subject were continued. The secretary of the St. Pancras School for Mothers knows a husband who does the washing. All the husbands of those who attend the school can clean the windows. Those who have been "brought up properly" help in the house.

Lady Astor, who depends somewhat on the vote of mere man for her position in Parliament, refuses to be drawn into the controversy, as do several hopeful and potential candidates for similar honrs.

MERE MAN SUCCESS AT DOING HOUSE WORK

CLEVELAND—Frank McBride has a novel vocation. He makes a living—and a good one he says—by doing housework for Cleveland women.

McBride will tackle anything from a big family washing to a job of cleaning house from attic to basement, with a little gardening on the side, with serene confidence that he can do the work better than any woman who ever lived. He has a route mapped out, going to certain homes on the same day of each week.

"No woman can clean a painted surface like I can," McBride said. "I worked for years as a cook on lake boats and I learned the trick then. Also, I am something of an artist when it comes to dusting and sweeping. I take pride in my work and I like to turn out a house all spick and span. Lots of women you hire by the day can't say that.

"Married? You just bet that I am not. I don't intend to have any woman bossing me. I have to take orders from women I work for, and that is enough."

BOYS GATHER COAL ALONG OCEAN FRONT

BOSTON—Along the South Boston waterfront urchins are gathering precious nuggets washed ashore from barges stranded long ago. They are nuggets of coal, almost as valuable as real ore at gold mines, now that the price locally has been jumped to $10 a ton for stove varieties.

NARCOTIC CLINICS ARE FAILURE

Cities Will Not Extend Treatment of Drug Addicts

CHICAGO.—Municipal dispensation of drugs thru narcotic drug clinics is generally conceded to have been a failure, reports a committee on narcotic drugs and crime appointed by the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology.

The report was written by Dr. L. L. Stanley, resident physician of the California Prison at San Quentin, for presentation at the twelfth annual meeting of the institute at Indianapolis September 16-18.

Dr. Stanley adds that "probably no more municipalities will establish clinics of this type."

Government monoptly of the manufacture of opium derivatives is recommended in the report. Dr. Stanley urges that it be "put on a plan somewhat similar to the minting of money."

Narcotic drug clinics cited by Dr. Stanley are those established at New York, New Orleans, Los Angeles and San Diego. He characterizes the failure of the New York clinic, which closed early this year after 11 months' operation, as "one of the two outstanding features in the past two years' developments in regard to the drug addiction problem."

JAP GIRL NAMES HOME RULES

Gives Ideas as to Husband's Treatment of Wife

By HENRY W. KINNEY

TOKYO — Considerable interest has been excited in Tokyo by the display at an exhibition given by the Girls' Industrial School in Tokyo, of a poster naming eight requests which the Japanese wife of today should make from her husband. To an American girl the requests should seem modest in the extreme, the full list being as follows:

1. Please get up at the same time I do.
2. When you leave home, please tell me where you go.
3. Please let me know when you go out and when you return.
4. Please do not scold me in the presence of visitors or the children.
5. Please grant me a few privileges and some of my wishes.
6. Please give me a fixed sum of money for my personal use.
7. Please refrain from doing in front of the children things which may set a bad example.
8. Please allow me certain hour for reading and study.

Another poster tabulated the answers given to a questionaire sent out to a thousand women inquiring as to what were their greatest wishes. Of these 980 wanted new clothing, 720 to go to theaters and other places of amusement, 150 frankly confessed to a craving for good food, 100 generally specified happy homes, 50 wanted to travel, while only 30 were eager to accumulate money.

FINDS PAPER BEARING LINCOLN'S SIGNATURE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—A little girl found a peculiar looking piece of paper on the street here. She picked it up and brought it to a newspaper office. There it was identified as an old legal document containing Abraham Lincoln's signature. The paper was a writ in assumpsit drawn by lincoln and Herndon, attorneys, dated 1846. The writ quotes the price of corn in those days at 17 cents a bushel, which the document attecks as exhorbitant. Today, a little over seventy years since, the farmers are getting over $1.50 for the corn, but there is no Lincoln to say it is too much.

GRAPE CROP LARGEST EVER

COLUMBUS, Ohio. —This year's grape crop will be the largest in Ohio in 10 years, according to estimates now, it is said by W. F. Calland, federal crop reporter. Reports to September 1, Calland said, indicate a crop of from 90 to 100 percent as compared to an average of 77 percent for the last ten years. Unusually good growing conditions are responsible for the record crop, Calland said.

ENTIRE CITY WILL BE MOVED

Made Necessary by Building of Big Dam in Idaho

POCATELLO, Idaho.—The entire city of American Falls is to be moved, bag and baggage, several miles from its present location. American Falls is a modern city of several thousand population and is situated not far from here on the Oregon Short Line Railroad in South-eastern Idaho. The transplanting of the city is made necessary in order to construct a huge reclamation dam on the site of the present town.

This modern miracle will be engineered at an early date. Laying out the new township has been completed by experts so that the owners of property in the present town will exchange their holdings for property similary situated in the new city. This method has been adopted to prevent speculation. The present American Falls will be completely submerged when the dam is finished.

Governor D. W. Davis, lives in American Falls.

F. J. Casey, who has been on probation on the Lima police force for the past six weeks, was dismissed by Safety Director Fred H. Fisher, Saturday.

WESTERN OHIO APPEALS

The Western Ohio railway company appealed to common pleas court Saturday the case in Justice Hamilton's court, wherein A. H. Wheeler secured judgment against it by default, for $199.50. Wheeler charged that amount of money was due for repairs to pay for damages done his automobile, when an interurban car crashed into it.

Don't Wait Until Some Other Day

If you do you will have to pay more money. Homes in Lima will be higher in price next Spring than they are now, as the price of everything is governed largely by supply and demand. Every city in the United States is four years behind in the normal supply of houses. This means that it will take at least four years of intensive building to even catch up with the normal demand, to say nothing of housing the great influx of people from the country and smaller towns. Think it over and draw your own conclusions.

Our payment plan makes it easy for you.

WILD TURKEYS TO REVISIT OHIO

Will be Placed in Game Refuges for the Present.

COLUMBUS—Wild turkeys will again inhabit the woods of Ohio if plans of the state bureau of fish and game along this line are successful. The bureau has raised 75 wild turkeys this year and will transfer these as soon as possible to the game refuge which it proposes to establish in southern Ohio Wild turkeys have been practically, if not wholly, unknown in Ohio for 40 years it is said.

Pennsylvania brought back the wild birds in five years in such numbers that they again afford excellent sport for hunters in the Keystone state Ohio game officials have similar hopes

The state bureau started its work this spring when it bought a dozen old birds for breeding purposes from the owner of a private game farm near Akron With these as a nucleus the bureau has raised 75 birds this year and it expects these to multify next spring

It is proposed to distribute these birds all over the state for this would result in their extermination as rapidly as they are placed Wild turkeys require dense wilderness and for many years distribution will be confined to game refuges The bureau plans to open new game refuges from time to time and these will be thrown open to sportsmen

RESERVOIR BIDS IN

Contract to Protect Reservoir Will Be Let Soon.

The contract for repairing the alleged defective wall in the billion gallon Lost Creek reservoir is to be let early next week Mayor Frank A Burkhardt announced Saturday

Bids were in for several weeks, but, according to the mayor there has been a question as to how thick the defective wall should be constructed to assure absolute safety He said according to John R Mills superintendent of public works of Ohio who was consulted in the matter, a slope of 2 1-2 to one would be required Burkhardt declared Miller who is said to be one of the best authorities in the state on sewage engineering questions approved City Engineer Miller's decision that the construction of a wall which could be given a natural earth slope was to be preferred over an artificial construction such as cement

CANADA IS HOT AFTER BORDER RUM RUNNERS

MONTREAL Que.—If that portion of the United States adjoining Quebec is still 'dry' an enormous amount of whiskey which leaves Montreal might destined to cross the line must fall into hands other than those for whom it is intended

These shipments of liquor are being watched for at the southern end of the Victoria bridge across the St Lawrence River from Montreal by provincial authorities who count upon the best drivers of huge motor trucks loads for having liquor in the possession without a license at place other than their residence

The rum runners however have long forsaken the well beaten path of the bridge and at midnight a good sized steamer conveys the heavily laden trucks across the river at some less frequented spot Occasionally this ruse is detected and a chase between the trucks and the officers is on The trucks generally escape by dropping a few cases along the road to block the pursuit for Autumn Wea.

DRY BLUEM GOODS

Lacy New Camisoles and Brassieres

MANY of the new blouses demand lovely underthings. Nothing is more charming or so very practical as the lacy Camisole or Brassiere. And indeed, the Brassieres vie with their lovely companions in beauty and at the same time serve a distinct purpose in giving correct lines to the figure. One cannot have too many when they are as pretty as these Camisoles and Brassieres.

Of Exceeding Importance a Blouse May Be

EXQUISITE in color, in style and every fine detail of execution are the costume Blouses for Autumn wear with the tailleur or separate skirt. Ranging from the simple to the elaborate are Blouses of the innumerable silken fabrics in plain, plaid, figured and Paisley effects that are charming in their success at creating a complete costume out of the suit. Blouses of dyed laces, chiffons, or silks following the long Russian lines when worn with slim skirts form very lovely afternoon costumes in which much variety is possible.

Varied and Smart Clever Accessories

AFTER one has shopped successfully for the autumn wardrobe comes the delightful selection of the trifles that perfect the costume. Neckwear of dyed laces in jabot effects, a Parisian beaded bag in pouch or miser style, a smart umbrella which in its case makes a fine and feminine walking stick, hosiery that is sheer and exquisite with allover design, clocks, embroidery or lace insets, smart veils in number, perfumes, powders, rouge, lipstick and so on through the entire category of feminine accessories that make the well groomed woman's costume a delight to the eye.

Autumn In the Realm of Fashion

IT is with much genuine pleasure that this Store announces the initial showing of autumn costumes and accessories representing the cleverness and art of both the Parisian design and the American. Fashions in this exposition include both the conservative and the extreme versions of autumn modes. Regardless of one's preference patrons of this Store may feel assured that its established standards of quality and [illegible] shown staunchly the same. Early inspection is invited.

Skirts of Gay Plaids, Checks and Stripes

FEMININE thoughts turn with more pleasure than was once their wont to the separate Skirt. It merits consideration. Smart plaids, stripes and checks continue in the way of plaits—knife plaited, however, is the autumn edict. One finds variations in the arrangement of plaits, now in groups, now stitched down for figures of heavier build, but always interesting Skirts of this type are again favored for wear with the plain jacket for street or sports. Skirts of satin know no wane in popularity for wear with the exquisite blouse which needs a simple yet elegant companion.

Versatility Marks the Autumn Suit

AND of tremendous importance, of course, is the Suit. So much depends upon its smartness, its correct lines—conservative or extreme, and its atmosphere of essential quality. The youthful box jacket model, the more conservative knee-length coat suit, tailored and belted styles are to be had in the fashionable shades of brown and blue. Fur appears on panels, pockets, collars and in bandings in many models while others are designed for wear with separate furs.

Corsets to Perfect the Fall Costume

A THING of beauty is the well corseted figure—a mark of good grooming which no woman who regards her wardrobe or her appearance will neglect. Autumn costumes should be fitted over new Corsets. Our assortments are unusually complete and comprehensive, including special models for every type of feminine figure. Corsetieres of skill are always at your service at this Store who will assist in making your selection one of comfort and satisfaction.

Evening Attire of Great Beauty

JOYOUSNESS and abandon of the more or less conventional lines of daytime apparel by the poetry of floating drapery, color, silver lace, the sheen of silken fabric and gossamer-like tulle. Bouffancy so admirably adapted to the evening gown outshines the slender silhouette. Gowns for formal wear are a delight to the eye and to one's senses of color and beauty.

New Fall Frocks Distinctively Clever

ACHIEVING individuality in these glorious days of autumn is not so stupendous a task when there are Frocks and Frocks simply begging to be seen strolling the boulevard or at some afternoon affair. Smart tailored modes quite generally follow the simple lines of the chemise or redingote while in the afternoon Gown one finds bouffancy, drapery and other distinctly feminine touches. Lavish use of embroidery, beading, stitching, appliques of kid and odd uses of bindings are cleverly employed by the designer One's needs crystallize almost instantly upon seeing [illegible] of Autumn Frocks and Gowns for daytime wear.

Much Dainty Lingerie Exquisite and New

UNDER her smart apparel the woman of fine feelings likes to know there are dainty Underthings exquisitely trimmed, sheer and beautiful Handsome examples of both foreign and domestic handiwork are at all times available at this Store but for the autumn exposition there is a noteworthy collection of all that is new and delightful in feminine Lingerie. A better time to select fine garments of beauty cannot be recommended.

Sport Togs For the Outdoor Days

CRISP Autumn weather calls one out to the enjoyment of vigorous sports. The sportswomen may select smart suits of heavy Jersey weaves, smartly tailored and correct, motor wraps, motor accessories having a spirit and dash to them that is expected of the better sort of sports apparel Then too there are smart skirts, sweaters, scarfs and gloves of which a woman needs many.

Wraps and Coats For the Chill Days

SMART frocks must be covered by equally smart Wraps and indeed mostly one sees Wraps with a few distinctly Coat models for more conservative tastes. The gracefully draped lines of the Wrap give a delightful silhouette and are therefore, smart. Deeply caped, embroidered, fur-trimmed and of handsome soft-surfaced fabrics are Wraps suitable to accompany the chic frocks of autumn Then, of course, there are specialized Wraps and Coats for motoring, for afternoon, street, sports or evening

Of Regal Beauty Are Autumn Furs

THAT there is an art in the fashioning of peltries into Wraps, Coats, Scarfs and every fur fancy cannot be gainsayed when inspection has been made of this Store's truly regal collection of handsome Furs. Whether one must have a fur mantle or a modest choker confidence may be placed in the quality, service, workmanship and pelts of your selection.

BRINGING UP FATHER— By McMANUS

Short Shavings

The doctor's small son was entertaining a friend in his father's office, and they were looking with awed admiration at the articulated skeleton in the closet.

"Where did he get it?" asked the small guest in a whisper.

"Oh, he's had it a long time. I guess maybe that's his first patient."—Life.

Abe Carter was a pious, hard-working old darky, much respected by the white people of the community. But evil days fell upon Abe. The boll weevil destroyed his cotton; his adopted baby died of the whooping cough; his wife died of a fever; his horse was killed by lightning and a cyclone demolished his cabin.

The Episcopalian minister, hearing of Abe's extraordinary misfortunes, called to see him. "Abe," said the minister, "you have been sorely afflicted, but you must trust in the Lord; you must believe it is all for the best."

"Yas, suh, boss," said Abe. "Yas, suh, I does. I feels I is in de hands of a all-wise an' unscrupulous Providence."

In a confidential little talk to a group of medical students an eminent physician took up the extremely important matter of correct diagnosis of the maximum fee.

"The best rewards," he said, "come, of course, to the established specialist. For instance, I charge $25 a call at the residence, $10 for an office consultation, and $5 for a telephone consultation."

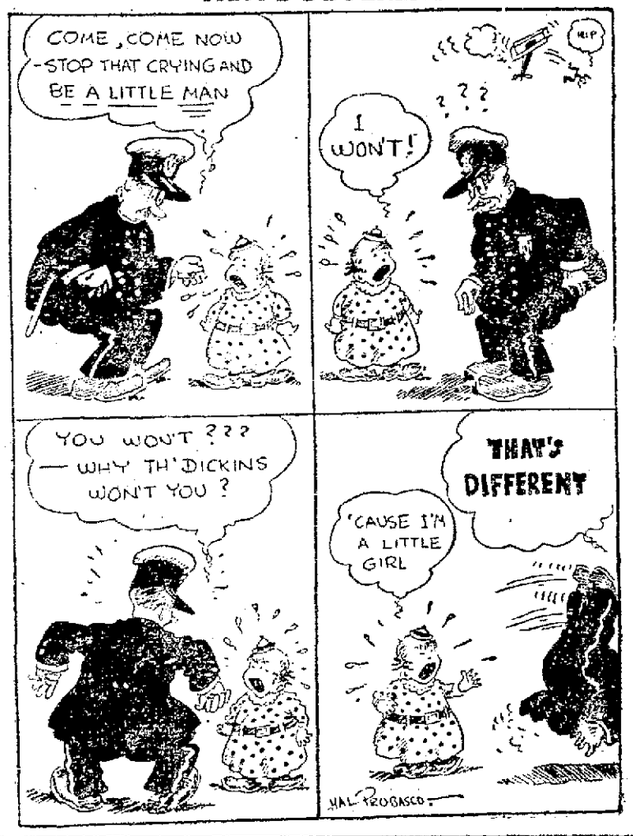

There was an appreciative and anxious silence, and then a voice from the back of the amphitheater, slightly thickened, spoke.

"Doc," it asked, "how much do you charge a fellow for passing you on the street?"

LIMA MINISTER HONORED AT BAPTIST CONVENTION

The Rev. L. R. Mitchell, pastor of the Second Baptist church, W. Spring-st, was elected national executive secretary of a movement which will have for its object the establishment of a home for aged ministers at the sessions of the National Baptist convention, which closed Friday at Columbus. Mr. Mitchell was also named a member of the commission of 100 to plan for the home.

More than 150 delegates attended from Ohio, of whom Mr. and Mrs. Shoecraft, Mrs. W. A. Baker, Mrs. Bessie Washington and Miss Goldie Price were from Lima. The amount of $100,000 was subscribed for continuing the work of the national theological seminary at Nashville, Tenn., established last year.

The three thousand delegates present represented three million members of the church. A monster parade the closing day was a feature.

However, in Marmola Prescription Tablets, all these difficulties are overcome. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting or violent exercise, and have the added advantage of cheapness. One little tablet after each meal and at bedtime—as pleasant to eat as candy—will reduce your weight two, three or four pounds a week, and leave no bad results such as wrinkles or flabby skin. The Man-of-Affairs' Investment Plan

The time of most men of affairs is greatly taxed by the demands of business.

And yet successful investing is a matter which requires much time and attention.

For want of time for investigating proffered investments, studying the trend of markets, promptly collecting coupons and other investment returns and re-investing them many are obliged to be satisfied with a smaller net profit on investments than is necessary.

The "Lima Trust Plan" is an ideal Investment Plan for men of affairs. The time given for its investigation will be amply rewarded.

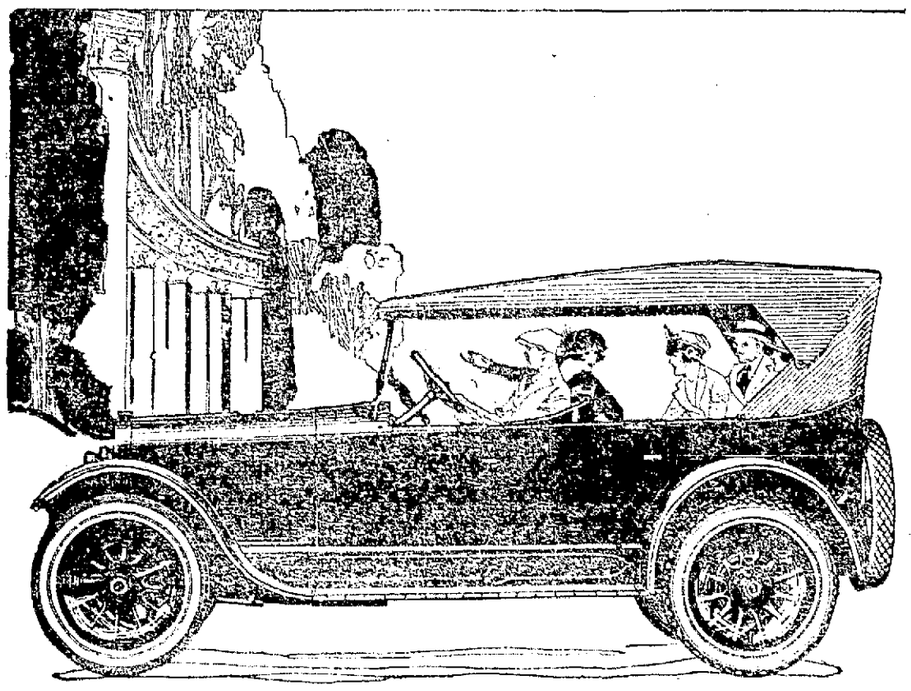

We will be glad to have you read our folders and booklet on the subject. Are you receiving our literature? Have you asked for the booklet? Shall we have a representative call and explain?

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

STILL firmly engulfed in the readjustment period, business for the past week over the country remained at stalemate. The successful and over subscription to the new French loan; the drop in demand money to six per cent; the reduction, averaging fifteen to twenty-five per cent on woolens for spring delivery; the continued improvement in railroad transportation were the bright features in the industrial world.

For the consumer, the statistical drop in food commodities as announced by the agricultural department was the most hopeful event of the week. Against this is the increasing slackening and shutting down of factories over the country, evidenced here during the week; and the total collapse of the building trade.

On the contrary to this slump, demand deposits in Lima banks show an increase, and savings accounts are steady and improving almost generally. Demand for money continues in excess of supply at all our financial institutions.

In the retail trade, merchants complain of poor deliveries and especially is this noted in women's ready-to-wear, more regarding dresses than in suits. Fall demand of the women buyers has already begun and today will see new autumn suits becoming quite general on the streets. Prices will be about the same as spring, merchants say, in all leading mercantile lines, including furniture and house fittings. Dry goods and especially piece goods, is in heavy demand; shoes are also finding many buyers; but men's trade has not yet gotten under way.

Lima needs coal. City authorities are doing their best, but it looks like a fuel famine, with restricted deliveries to a few tons. There is no anthracite; and no high-grade soft furnace coal in the hands of dealers, while gas, the natural brand at fifty cents, is a thing of the past and not to be counted upon.

Lima's locomotive works, steel plant, cigar factories and many of the smaller foundries and speciality industries, still run at good volume. So long as they do, the buying power will remain with us.

THE CITY CHARTER

BY act of council, the necessary legislation has been enacted providing for submission to the electors of Lima in the November 2 election the first city charter, for adoption or rejection. By a majority vote in a previous election, the people chose a charter commission to frame the important document to be submitted to the court of final resort—the people.

That commission, after months of intermittent labor and research and investigation of conditions in other cities where the charter form of government prevails, has completed its work and has ready to lay before the people the result. Consequently, from this time forth until the ides of November, it will be the bounden duty of Lima voters, men and women, to study the proposed charter, so that they may vote intelligently and for the best interest of the city in expressing themselves for or against the charter.

If the charter form of government will do for Lima all the things that are summed up in the preliminary statement concerning it and the voters are satisfied that such will be the case, there is no question but that the charter will be adopted by a vast majority. In view of the fact that women have been enfranchised since a charter was ordered, it is now as much their duty as it is the duty of the male voters to study and understand the proposed charter to be voted on in November.

The charter commission sets forth fifteen big reasons in argument for the adoption of the charter, the last and probably the most important of which is this: "It (the charter) recognizes the people as the sole source of governmental power and imposes upon each member of the community the duty and responsibility of actively interesting himself (or herself) in the affairs of the city."

If the charter form of government will do that one thing, there is no need of further argument in its behalf. That is sufficient. However, the big thing that it will do is this: It will demonstrate to everyone that cussing an administration isn't fair when the cusser fails, refuses or neglects to interest himself in public affairs.

o o o o o

THE COUNTY NORMAL

IT is rather surprising that a considerably larger number of pupils for the Allen-co normal school at Central high school have not entered for the course, made possible for those who desire to enter the teaching profession. The latest report conveys the information that 19 have enrolled and that there are prospects of at least a few more.

The further information is given that if a total of 22 students is secured a union of county and city normal effort with state aid to the extent of $500 will be possible. The state is affording assistance for the purpose of encouraging young people to equip themselves for careers as school instructors. Under the plan in vogue locally, it is possible for graduates of first class high schools residing outside of Lima to enter the normal school and receive its benefits without the necessity of paying tuition.

Attention of high school graduates who have not decided upon a future career is respectfully directed to this wonderful opportunity provided for their benefit. The teaching profession is not child's play by any means but it has its reward in something more than the financial remuneration that goes along with it as a necessary prerequisite. Those who devote their lives to the development of the youth of the land educationally are performing a service distinctly necessary and commendable. While broadening themselves, they are imparting to others and deserve all the praise that comes to those who live for others.

More and more the world is demanding well educated young people. A knowledge of the world and its affairs is essential to those who would succeed. There can be no success where education has been neglected. In years agone, when school facilities were meager and the number of teachers pitifully small, many who did not even have access to the "three R's," made a suchess of life, but their one big regret was that better educational opportunities were not afforded them.

There is no more noble calling than that of teaching. Young people who equip themselves for it are serving their fellow men. In these latter days the emoluments that go along with the service are attractive and there need be no holding back on that score. More young people should take advantage of the normal school course.

HEALTH HINTS

By William Brady, M. D.

THE RELATIONS AND THE BABY

As a matter of unconscious fact mother's pies were really pretty punk—and isn't the old schoolin' hole a disappointing little puddle when you go back and visit it now?

Grandpa and grandma and the uncles and aunts and the various in-laws love to humor the baby's whims and feed him little bits of this and that which baby's mother knows well enough he should not have but which those well-meaning worshipers are sure they remember they ate freely when they were much younger than baby is now. This is the trick memory plays on us all. Take the long summer vacation. In the halcyon days this was an eon of bliss, long, glorious, happy days almost without end. Now it is an incredibly short intermission, come-again, gone-again. Time constantly accelerates in his headlong flight. And memory is a treacherous thing.

It is nevertheless a great sin to give a baby such things as tea or coffee or cocoa, mere tastes, which whet his appetite for more and tend to impair his appetite for his proper beverage, fresh milk. The little taste is like a few puffs at a cigarette; it creates a desire for more where there should have been no desire at all. Of all the wicked things inconsiderate relations do to little babies, the worst is feeding the little ones sips of alcoholic beverage; on one pretext or another.

A great many children from three to ten years of age have certain food dislikes which seriously interfere with their nutrition and health, and very often these peculiar dislikes are the result of indulgences permitted in the diet in early infancy. In some cases the dislike becomes pathological—the child is seriously upset by the merest morsel of the particular food substance, say a bit of eggs or some other ordinarily wholesome article.

One of the commonest faults of feeding in childhood is a diet for children three or more years old limited too strictly to carbohydrates—refined white bread, the various trashy "breakfast foods," cakes, and the like. Such children are likely to become anemic irritable, easily tired, constipated, from defective nutrition, altho they may be practically normal in body weight or even fat. The condition is commonly due to humoring the childish palate with the palate-tickling sweet things, which dew the natural appetite for eggs, milk, fresh meat and particularly fresh vegetables or green vegetables. For such children nothing is so helpful as a sojourn away from home and under the control of some one who will offer proper food and refuse to humor the perverted tastes.

No beverage can be substituted for fresh milk in the diet of a child under thirteen years of age without some impairment of nutrition, growth or health.

No child can maintain normal health and nutrition on a diet which does not include fresh meats and fresh or green vegetable each week.

VARIATIONS—Wake, Wakeman.

RACIAL ORIGIN—English.

SOURCE—Geographical, also occupational.

The family names of Wakefield, Wake, and Wakeman all trace back ultimately to an old Anglo-Saxon word, "waec," meaning "watch," which, indeed, comes from the same word root as "watch."

The word "waes-man," or as it came to be spelled in the period following the Norman invasion of England, "wake-man" meant simply "watchman." And the wakeman of the various English communities was an important personage among his neighbors, for upon him devolved the responsibility of seeing that no theft of citizens' property took place from the time he blew his horn at 9 p. m. until sunrise, for it was the custom in those days that the entire community should make good any losses suffered by any individual during that period. In the course of time not only the wakeman himself, but his entire family, and finally their descendants, came to be known by this name, until it lost its significance of occupation and became a family name.

The wake, or watch, in medieval times, was a religious custom, the populace gathering in the square, or some open place to watch for the dawn of the feast-day. Such gatherings naturally attracted wandering merchants until the occasion became important commercially as a fair. Hence a certain large town in Yorkshire developed the name of Wakefield. The family name of Wakefield in its original form denoted that its bearer came from the town of that name.

SHE LOVED HIM, BUT HE MOVED AWAY

(We have submitted this lyric to thirty or forty song publishers, but somehow it doesn't seem to get over. They all say it is one of the best songs they have ever read, but they can't handle it. There is not much call for sad or sentimental songs, they say. People want to hear something funny.)

He was a brawny plumber and his maiden name was Jim.
His sweetheart was a modest lass who never danced the shim.
They went together many years. The girl's name, it was Nell.
She wasn't any beauty and perhaps 'twas just as well.
But she was true and steadfast and stuck by while he was poor
And in those days of poverty he was quite loyal to 'er.
Then wages went up with a bang. Nell said: "Jim, let us wed."
But he then said these cruel words; these cruel words, he said:

CHORUS

"Oh, you don't take a ham-sandwich To a banquet, Nellie dear.
The days when I was young and poor They're over, never fear.
For now I have a limousine And I can choose my wife.
I don't need to hook up with any Valentine for life.
I know you have been faithful, Nell, But that is not the point.
I want a classy, jazzy dame A-sweeping out my joint."
With them few words he left her and She's wept until this day.
She loved him with an honest heart, But Jim, he moved away.

According to our idea, summer is a wonderful piece of work. It always looks good—in the winter.

"Wet" Davis and "Dry" Willis Fight For State Control

"REMEMBER THE LUSITANIA"

Echoes of Things Political Framed For the Week

(By J. W. FISHER.)

There is an old saying that runs in these words: "When thieves fall out, honest men get their dues." This expression is merely employed as a figure of speech to preface comment concerning a caterwauling condition in Ohio affecting the Republican candidates for Governor and United States Senator. How O. G. P. faithful can reconcile Francis Bartlett Willis and Harry Davis on the same ticket is a little more than the average citizen can well understand, when it is remembered that Davis is so wet his handkerchief is "perfumed" with "Old Coon" or "Green River," or some other equally prominent but now obsolete brand of snake bite antidote, while Willis who used to be dry in Hardin-co and wet in Hamilton-co for vote getting purposes only, isn't saying anything either way since he was caught dead to rights trying to carry water in the form of the booze question on both shoulders.

The inevitable spill occurred and Frank is now "singing low," keeping well concealed on the question that Bryan and a few others refuse to believe is settled finally by the 18th amendment. They fear a resurrection of booze and are seeking to have a few more nails sunk into the lid of the coffin that conceals the "mortal remains." But, this paragraph started out to say that Willis and Davis are staging a real for sure, honest to Agnes fight for the control of the management of the state campaign. Willis is legging for a "dry" committee, while Davis is leading the opposition. Despite the fact that Davis was chief mourner, as mayor of Cleveland, when that city went to its "financial grave," he is more consistent than Willis. Davis ought to be favored by Cincinnati and Cleveland, two of the worst busted cities in the state, in view of the fact that he is looked upon as the Moses to lead the "children" of the wicked centers of population away from the Smith one per cent. tax law. Cincinnati and Cleveland want a free rein in the matter of expenditure of money, while Vic Donahey and the Smith law are in the position of saving them from themselves. The Davis policy, framed to meet the demands of the larger cities, will very likely, if applied, hurry the state of Ohio into receivership. The rural districts and small towns, back of A. Victor, the "watchdog of the treasury," are expected to be able to offset the vote in the big cities for Davis and his money melting orgy. If Ohio is to be saved from bankruptcy, the voters will have to repudiate Davis. And if this state desires a business man in the Senate, they will have to look beyond Francis Bartlett. The ghost of two years of Willis as Governor ought to be sufficient to effectually prevent the people of Ohio from perpetrating another joke on themselves by electing him to the Senate.

"Where did Willis get so many votes in the primary," is a question one hears frequently. The secret appears to be getting out, despite attempts to keep it under cover. Francis B. is getting the benefit of his attitude when the Lusitania was sunk, in having the backing of those who in their hearts thought more of the kaiser than they did of this country. They well remember Willis' statement following the sinking of the Lusitania, while patriotic American citizens who do not draw their inspiration from foreign shores and whose hearts as well as their lips sing "The Star Spangled Banner" with fervor, forget what he said back in those days when the enemies of America were slashing at the very vitals of this republic. It is being openly charged that the Republican organization is capitalizing a sentiment that was sinister during the war. In a county not far from Allen, a man whose services were refused by the government during the war when tendered, for reasons that were then deemed good and sufficient, is now being used by the Republican ticket in localities where the language he speaks is understood, if before election day rolls round, there isn't an expose of certain methods that are being employed that bode ill for the future of this republic, then all indications will have failed.

* * *

The late President McKinley is credited with having originated the front porch method of conducting a national campaign. He did not. It was Benjamin Harrison who first adopted that plan, in his first campaign, in 1888. And his front porch drew large delegations from far distant points. It was the day of cheap railway rates and arrangements were easily made for large concessions to excursion parties. Mr. Harrison was elected, but the fact did not warrant him and his advisers in relying on the same methods to reelect him. In his second campaign he left the porch and made several tours of the country, even when he bore the dignity of the office of President of the United States.

In his second campaign President Harrison had the opposition of organized labor to meet, as he did not in his first campaign. The trend of the labor sentiment was soon preceived in the contest and it was felt by both the candidate and the national chairman that to save the day the candidate would have to go direct to the people. Because labor is evincing a similar attitude toward Warren G. Harding it is not surprising he is forsaking the porch. And the fact is well remembered that when President Harrison incurred the antagonism of labor, as Harding has done, he went down to defeat.

Echoes of Congressman B. F. Welty's Labor Day speech at McCullough's park are being heard in the form of approbation of Ben's fearless stand on questions of the utmost importance and for the "bawling out" he gave aspirants for office who employ a smile to get them by over the rough and rocky way in lieu of a record of performance that should require no reminder for the voting populace save grateful recollection. Our Allen-co Ben has a way all his own of admitting that his opponent in the 1920 congressional romp is a mighty fine citizen, whose honesty is unquestioned and whose beaming countenance is as conspicuous among his fellows as a wart on the nose of an old toper and then proceeds to take the hide off the other fellow for his failure to do sundry things in behalf of the people which the authority to do was given him under the pronouncements of the spirit and letter of the law. These two Allen-co boys, Bennie Welty and Johnnie Cable, despite the fact that their congressional hopes and aspirations are in constant conflict these days, are not overlooking the proprieties that call for a pleasant "howdy" when they meet. Johnnie couldn't help taking some sort of notice of the fact that Bennie gave him a few verbal wallops from the stump on Labor Day and so far as known Johnnie hasn't been heard in a come-back. In fact, Bennie feels that he made his case so strong and convincing that there is "no such animal as a come-back."

This grateful citizen, duly appreciative of the fact that a kind Providence was pleased to place him in a locality that stands out prominently as the very best in all Ohio, recalls that, thus far in the present campaign, he has heard about all kinds and color of political argument, but it remained for an Arkansas Republican now visiting in this part of Ohio, to spring a new one. You know, Republicans down in Arkansaw are about as scarce as hen's teeth, but occasionally one of a militant character can be found among the cotton blossoms. "I'm against Governor Cox because organized labor is for him," said the Arkansan referred to. He is a plantation owner and an employer of labor. His position is reflective of the sentiment that seems to controll all too many who depend upon the employment of labor to work out their business plans. This remark, from the Arkansas planter, fits in well with a pronouncement by a certain manufacturer, who puts it this way: "We must elect Harding and a Republican congress; we've got to show labor that it must accept lower wages and work longer hours." If labor looks to its own, there should be no difficulty whatever for it to ascertain quickly and decisively where it belongs this year, politically.

* * *

Despite the fact that time after time questions have been answered concerning the boyhood history of Cox and Harding, these queries continue to come. As to the church of their preference, Mr. Harding is listed as a Baptist, but as he is said to be a persistent golf player, his standing in the church may become impaired since he took up that habit, one so temptatious of profanity. Mr. Cox's church has not been named in any biography to a great extent. But at 14 years of age he was sexton of a United Brethren church at Jacksonburg, Ohio. Whether he was a bonafide member of that church or was merely a mercenary attache is not quite clear, but as his salary was 35 cents a week, there is ground for the suspicion that he was concerned mostly for the money.

A little later he became janitor of the district school house at 25 cents a week, making a total of 60 cents weekly for his two positions. At that tender age he was inclined toward wha our socialistic friends call capitalism and we find him at 15 years of age, giving up his two active jobs and accepting employment as printer's devil at $2 a week—publishers then as now always trying to outbid everybody else in hiring good men. While Jimmie Cox was pulling down his two dollars each and every week as a printer's devil, Warren G. Harding was a compositor, earning around $40 a month and patronizing a mail-order laundry.

Harding is five years older than Cox, and had that much start of him in the race for the White House, the goal both are legging for, not alone the honor of the preferment, but for free house rent and an exclusive neighborhood in the city of Washington. When both were printers, neither knew that the other was a candidate for President, therefore they concealed nothing from each other. At least, by common consent, personalities are being barred from the campaign by the candidates. And one of them will be elected.

* * *

The old Cincy Enquirer is off the track again. Ever since the year that John R. McLean, now deceased, ran for Governor on the Democratic ticket and was given such a walloping that he never got over it, the Enquirer has been doing political somersaulting year in and year out. McLean was the owner of the old downstate publication and never forgave the people of Ohio for licking him while he was a resident of Washington. Running true to form, the Enquirer until a few days ago consistently supported Cox in its news columns, but refrained from editorial pronouncement. Completely changing front on the question of the League of Nations, the Enquirer is now against the covenant, probably for the reason that it wants to strike at President Wilson. It doesn't say so, exactly, but the Enquirer is against Cox. There are no half-way measures in politics. One is either for or against a man or measure. The Enquirer is not for the league or for Cox.

* * *

Out in Fargo, North Dakota, Governor Cox asked a lanky farmer concerning the time the first frost is expected there in the fall. The question propounded by the Governor brought an answer that was original, if anything and which created a hearty laugh among those who heard it. The answer given by the farmer was: "The first frost this year will be when Senator Harding comes to North Dakota."

* * *

Republican papers whose editorial writers are blue in the face as a result of yelling "'taint so" to the charges laid by Governor Cox concerning a big slush fund for Harding, seem to be overlooking the little fact that they are applying the short and ugly word to their own party leaders. For be it remembered that the facts Governor Cox has submitted are from Republican records. The O. G. P. boys are in such a position as was the fellow who, when chased by a bull, ran in a circle and finally got hold of the belligerent animal's tail. They're like to let loose, but they fear even worse results if they do. In the meantime, the O. G. P. party leaders continue denying their own child.

POLITICS ISSUE IN SCHOOL SENATE

Central High Body Takes Up Presidential Issue.

Central High Senators will have a chance to declare their politics this year, it was decided at a meeting of the officers of the Senate.

The senate will divide into political parties and the semi-monthly debates will be chiefly upon the presidential issues until election. This is the first year that politics have been introduced in the Senate in this way.

The High School Senate is composed of students from the four upper classes of the high school. The rules, constitution and decorum are modeled after the United States Senate. Debates are held regularly on important problems of the day.

It is expected that this will be one of the best years in its history as the majority of the members have been in the body for two or more years and have had considerable experience.

Prof. W. E. Binkley is faculty critic of the organization. I. Steel, class of '21 is president.

GAS SCHEDULE UP

Councilmen Recline to Discuss Probable Action.

The new rate schedule filed by the Lima Gas Light Co., will be one of the questions to be settled by the city council at an adjourned session Monday night.

Council men declined to comment on what action will be taken by the council. Mayor Burkhardt declared however, that the city solicitor will undoubtedly be instructed to protest to the new rates.

The schedule filed by the company calls for a charge of $1.90 per thousand for artificial gas, instead of $1.10, as under the present rate.

Councilmen Tarvin, Tierney, Jones and Schuller intimated Saturday night they would take whatever action is recommended by the city solicitor on his return.

In addition to the gas question, council will take care of unfinished business left over from the meeting last Tuesday night.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO ELECT OFFICERS NEXT TUESDAY EVENING

The annual election of officers of Lima Council 456 Knights of Columbus will be held next Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock in the new K. C. home. The election was postponed from last week owing to the Elks' convention. Several out of town speakers among them will be B. L. Jauman, mayor of Delphos and a prominent Knight. The other speaker has not been decided upon.

Following the business session, a smoker and lunch will be enjoyed. An attendance of several hundred members is expected, as matters of special interest are to be considered.

DECREES GRANTED

Husband and Wife Given Divorces By Judge Klinger

Judge William Klinger granted two divorces Saturday, a wife and a husband being the winners of the little papers.

William H. Hunt was divorced from Mary Elizabeth Hunt, Detroit, on the grounds of desertion and given the custody of their two children, Verna, 17, and Floyd, 11.

The wife made no defense. She left, the husband said, in 1913 and since that time they had never lived together. They were married in Putnam co in January, 1902.

Mrs. Mary A. Beaty secured a decree from George W. Beaty on the grounds of neglect. The case was heard in part last Saturday and further evidence was taken Saturday. Mrs. Beaty told the court he refused to talk to her for weeks at a time and while she tried to make life pleasant for him, he took no interest in her or their home.

During their married life he only bought her the goods for a cheap dress, which she made herself. She said and declared he refused to give her money for other wearing apparel.

They were married April 30, 1915, and have no children.

He has not missed a session in the last 54 years and only two in the last 60. He agrees with state fair officials that this year's fair was better than any ever held in the past.

RUSS PRINT 'CASH' BY THE BALE

Enough Made to Gird Earth Twice at the Equator

BY BARBARA DEPORTE

LONDON—Imagine having a belt of paper money two yards wide and long enough to go around the earth twice at the equator.

This helps to give some idea of the paper money issued by the Bolsheviks during the first year and a half of their regime.

The Soviet Government is now issuing its money in notes of 5,000 and 10,000 roubles, because it has so greatly depreciated that about the only thing it is possible to purchase for 100 roubles is a box of matches.

When it is remembered that a nominal value of 100 roubles is $50 some idea can be gained of the tremendous depreciation that has taken place in Russian money.

Those who have recently arrived here from Russia tell amusing, altho at the same time, pathetic stories about the difficulties which the Russians are having with money.

It sounds like a paradox, but it is a fact that there is altogether too much money in Russia just now—and too many different kinds.

One of the surprising facts is that the most valuable of all Russian money at the present time is the note issued by the Government of the late Czar. This money still retains a fairly high value—as compared with the other many issues—and is eagerly sought for and hidden away when obtained.

The next in value is the "Dumskiya," issued by the Duma right after the revolution. Following that is the "Kerenski," issued by Kerenski. The money is very insignificant looking, more like stamps than real money, as it comes in large perforated sheets of twenty notes, each valued at five roubles. The people have long since ceased tearing off one or two notes when they make a purchase. They hand out the whole sheet and speak of it as a year of "Kerenski."

Money is being printed in Soviet Russia in six different cities and each day three milliards worth of roubles are printed. Even this is not sufficient to supply the many Soviet institutions and measures are now being taken to increase the daily output to five milliards.

The Bolsheviks are not at all embarrassed by the enormous amount of money with which they have flooded the country. On the other hand they are printing millions of roubles every day and the consequent result is that it is daily becoming more and more valueless.

At the last session of the Central Executive Committee it was decided to take measures toward the immediate establishment of an exchange whereby goods would be exchanged for other goods or labor, and thus completely abolish money as the medium of barter altogether.

CONVICT, ESCAPES GALLOWS. KILLED IN FIGHT OVER PRISON BALL GAME

WALLA WALLA, Wash.—Executive clemency for Harold C. Newcomb, who committed murder in Pierce County in 1910, failed to save him from a violent death before he could leave the State prison on parole. Charles Wilson, a huge negro, serving a sentence of from ten to twenty-four years for a similar charge, who was not sentenced to the noose, may yet feel the strands of the rope around his neck.

Newcomb died as a result of a terrific blow from a baseball bat in the hands of Wilson, following a dispute over the former's decision while acting as umpire in a baseball game between rival prison teams.

THOMAS KYLE, 86, DIES AFTER SIX YEARS' ILLNESS

Thomas Kyle, 87, died Saturday at his home, 1044 Forest-ave, after an illness of six years, from a complication of diseases. He was born in Maryland in 1832.

Surviving are the widow, two daughters and two sons. They are Mrs. James Miller, Custar, Mich; Mrs. Frank Fiferek, Saginaw; Reuben Kyle, with whom he made his home and George Kyle, Bridgeport, Conn. Six grand-children are left. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen lodge in Custar, Mich.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

NO BIDS ON BONDS

$35,000 Issue for Childrens Home Fails to Sell.

No bids were received Saturday for the $36,000 worth of six per cent bonds, which will be sold to install a new heating apparatus at the Allen-co Childrea's Home.

For that reason letting of contract for the work for which bids were received by county commissioners up to last Monday, has been delayed. Half a dozen contractors bid on the job.

Prosecuting Attorney John L. Cable will invoke the aid of the state industrial commission to take the bonds.

OHIO BIG LEAGUER'S MEET DISASTER IN SATURDAY'S BATTLES

REDS DOWNED TWICE BY BOSTON AND CHAMPIONSHIP HOPES GO GLIMMERING—TRIBE LOSES SECOND STRAIGHT TO NEW YORK, BUT HOLDS LEAD

CHAMPS LOSE TWO IN ONE DAY AT BOSTON; ROBINS WIN

BOSTON.—The world's championship aspirations of the Cincinnati Reds went Bloole Saturday here when the league leaders of the National circuit suddenly dropped two games,—both of 'em— to the second division Boston team.

The first one was all shot for the champs when Groh heaved a wild one to first and allowed the winning run to come in. It might have been a different story if it hadn't been for that one error. The score was 5 to 4.

But the second game was even worse. The champions didn't even get a chance to score—no not a single run. And in one inning, the sixth, Boston succeeded in putting over two counters for the second victory of the day. The scores:

TENSION IN MAJORS HIGH

By L. R. BLANCHARD

NEW YORK.—American League fans were getting out their microscopes and calipers Saturday night. Without a doubt these first aids to gnats eyebrow accuracy were necessary to figure out the margins between the first three clubs in the Johnsonian circuit after the returns of the Saturday games were in.

Their reward for taking the odd game of the last "crucial series" was the advance of the Yanks Saturday until Speaker's Indians were keeping them out of the lead by the infinitesimal margin of .0006 point.

Chicago, muffing a golden opportunity to rush into the lead, lost to Boston and Saturday night rested in third place .0028 point behind New York. The figures, including Saturday's games, follow:

	WON	LOST	PCT.
Cleveland	82	52	.6165
New York	85	53	.6159
Chicago	84	53	.6131

Thus, it will be seen the race is a virtual tie with the smallest fraction of one game separating the first and third clubs. As a matter of fact, the Indians owe their lead, small as it is, to the sole fact that they have played fewer games than the other clubs.

Nor has the tension relaxed in the National League battle royal. Brooklyn forged a full three games to the lead, however, by taking a double-header from the Cardinals while the slipping Reds fell twice before the Braves. The Giants beat the Cubs and advanced to a favorable spot half a game behind the fading champions. The National League standing was:

	WON	LOST	PCT.
Brooklyn	80	57	.584.
Cincinnati	74	57	.565.
New York	75	59	.560.

Three weeks more to go and the greatest major league fight since 1908. Certainly, no prettier fight ever was waged in the American League. And the battle in the older circuit is hardly a whit less furious.

The clubs are fighting for the wire now. Its come to the last desperate drive. The three American League leaders thus far have refused to crack, but one must out-game the others in the next three weeks.

Some one had better head off the rampaging Robins or it will be too late. The Reds are faltering. Gotham fans believe its up to the Giants and they expect to see the race decided when the two New York clubs meet in their final collision in the big city.

McLAUGHIN'S TEAM WINNER SATURDAY

W. J. McLaughlin's team was victorious Saturday at the Shawnee country Club, returning in an all day tourney with 37 points to their credit against 18 scored by the team captained by J. C. Linneman.

The tournament was a series of affairs arranged by the Shawnee golfers between themselves. The winning side is the guest of the losing side at a dinner given at the club house immediately after the tournament is over.

Every member of the club is eligible to competion. Sid re chosen by the two captains appointed for the day and the men are paired off, making individual competition with the winning golfer being awarded three points.

Bill Russel is reported to have come all the way from Chicago, where he was on business, for the one tournament Saturday.

Next Saturday, the club will again be divided with A. F. Knisley captaining one team and T. N. Cunningham captaining the other.

WHITE SOX WRECKING CREW LEADS ALL QUARTETS IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Altho the White Sox team as a whole hasn't led the league in batting, its wrecking crew, composed of Jackson, Weaver, Felsch and Collins, stacks up as the most dangerous quartet in the circuit. Recent batting figures showed that these four birds were whanging the old apple harder than the four leading hitters of any of the other outfits. This wrecking combination has been a great help to Gleason in breaking up games where pitching seemed to be a standoff. All four men have hit well over .300 practically all season. Jackson's hitting has been the most spectacular, but Eddie Collins and the others have stepped in with their share.

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE LEAD TO GARFORD ON OLD RULING

Revised standings announced by the commission in charge of the Industrial baseball league Saturday night dropped the Deisel Wemmer team out of first place and gave it to the Garford outfit.

Recognition of the action of the commission on a protested game between the Garford and Deisel Wemmer outfits brought the change, forcing the cigarmakers to accept second place.

The game in question was one forfeited to the Deisel Wemmer team by Umpire Cook, following a decision in which he called a Garford man out for interference. The commission, later, threw out the game.

Saturday, due to a misunderstanding, it was announced, only two, instead of the four scheduled Industrial league games were played.

Deisel Wemmer and East Iron played a listless game at the Murphy-st diamond with the former league leaders on the long end of a 11 to 4 score. The cigarmakers scored in every inning except the first and sixth, and at no time were they in danger.

The start, however, looked a little bad for them when East Iron got two runs in the last half of the first, but the lead was easily overcome by Deisel Wemmer and the ironworkers were allowed to score but twice after that. Smith starred in the game with a wonderful catch in right field.

Garford bettered the Deisel Wemmer game when they held the Gramm Bernstein team to not a single counter in the entire seven innings of play. Meanwhile, the south end truckbuilders piled up a score averaging one run an inning.

There was plenty of hitting in the game with Westby Costello, Stump, and Patrick scoring two baggers, Reynolds a triple, and Costello again, but this time for a four base clout.

Reynolds cut short a rally on the part of the Gramm Bernstein team, and was probably responsible for the failure of the pioneer truckers to score when he nailed Pierce's long fly and then threw all the way home to catch Jones at the plate for the third out.

There are still a number of games that remain to be played before the Starret cup can be awarded to a winner. The Garford team is at present in possession of the trophy. If they win it again this year, they will hold it another year or two years straight.

FIVE BIG TEN GAMES ON OHIO STATE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

COLUMBUS, O. — Five Western Conference games and two Ohio Conference games are on the football schedule of Ohio State this fall. Only two games will be played away from home—Chicag and Illinois and both in the latter part of the season.

Starting Oct. 22 with Ohio Wesleyan as their opponent, the Buckeyes will follow one of the stiffest schedules in years. The changes from last year's schedule are the absence of Kentucky State and Cincinnati and the addition of Oberlin and Chicago. Oberlin was dropped from Ohio State's list back in 1916 following 128 to 0 defeat administered to them. Superior playing last year and the fact that they shared honors with two other Ohio colleges in titular state championship honors led to their return into the fold of the state universities opponents.

When the Buckeyes journey to Chicago for their first game abroad October 30, it will be the first time that any Buckeye football men have met Coach Stagg's warriors on the football field. Athletic officials at the Buckeye institution for several years have attempted to annex Chicago to their string but it was not until last year after Ohio State had shown on three successive occasions that she was of Western Conference championship caliber, that the signature of Chicago officials was attached to the playing documents.

Purdue, the first Western Conference game of the season, October 16, will be the main attraction of the semi-centennial celebration on the campus that week. Alumni from all sections of the country will attend this contest to witness the workout of their team against Big Ten competition and to attend the various festivities on the campus. One week later, October 23, Wisconsin will be met here. Last year, the Buckeyes won from the Badgers by only a three point margin a field goal in the final quarter, kicked by "Chic" Harley, the Buckeye's premier All American halfback.

The annual homecoming game will fall to Michigan this year, November 6, and will be played on the Ohio Field. Reports emanating from the Wolverine institution indicate strong preparations are being laid by Coach Yost and his cohorts to retrieve Michigan's lost favor on the gridiron. Last year Ohio State defeated them at Ann Arbor 13 to 3. Michigan and Ohio State are natural rivals and this probably will be one of the hardest fought and most interesting games of the season.

Two weeks (21) later, November 20, Ohio State will travel to Urbana and meet Illinois in the final game of the season. Last year Illinois snatched the championship from the Buckeyes in the final eight seconds of play.

With the exception of the loss of "Chic" Harley who has completed three years of Western Conference competition and the withdrawal from the university of a couple of linemen, the team is expected to be practically the same as last year's. Developing a couple of ends will be the chief difficulty of Coach Wilce when the season opens, as Flowers and Myers, last year's ends are not available. Flowers has left school and it is undetermined whether or not Myers will be allowed to play this year. McDonald, another end of last year, graduated. It is quite likely that some of last year's freshmen material will be worked in at this position, notably Isabel and possibly Crais.

Pixley, guard on last year's team, will not return to school, that position also remains to be occupied. In the back field somebody will have to be developed to fill "Chic" Harley's shoes if possible. Hobe Workman, of Huntington, W. Va., seems to be a likely candidate for that honor. Workman is said to be one of the best freshmen players at the university in years. He played a quarter last year on the freshmen team and repeatedly ripped up the varsity play and made fine open field runs. Stinchcomb may be shifted to a half in the event. Workman is retained at quarter where he played on the yearling squad.

Following are the men of last year's squad who are regarded as sure to return to school. Captain Huffman, Spiers, Trott, Nemeceh, Slyker, Williams, Stinchcomb, Taylor, Bliss and Myers.

YANKEES TURN UPON INDIANS AND DO A LITTLE SCALPING

CLEVELAND.—The Yankees turned upon the Indians here today and used the tactics of the tribe, massacring them to the tune of 6 to 2. The New York Americans figured that since the game put them within one point of the tribe's leads, that they amply re-paid Cleveland for the scalping they got in the first game of the series.

Three pitchers were ordered onto the slab by Manager Tris Speaker of the Ohio outfit, but all without avail. Babe Ruth wasn't given much of an opportunity however, for the best he could do during the day was a two bagger.

Thormalen pitching for New York, held the Indians to seven scattered hits. Two errors by Pipp at first base, failed to give the Indians enough of a break to win.

Balance

Because of its low center of gravity, centralization of load and scientific spring suspension, the Marmon 34 rides at all speeds with perfect equilibrium.

Passengers, mechanism and even gasoline are all carried between the two axles. This eliminates side-sway, makes motoring more enjoyable, reduces wear on car, and affords greater economy in gasoline and tires.

INDIANAPOLIS REINSTATES FOOTBALL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Prohibited since 1907, football will be resumed in the three high schools of Indianapolis this fall. As a result of the school board's action reinstating the sport, interest in the game has increased thruout the state. Former college players have been obtained to coach the boys and the school board has advanced sufficient funds to insure success in the undertaking

TWO TRIANGLE STARS ON LIMA LINEUP FOR TODAY

TWO members of that strong Dayton Triangle outfit that has been seen in action on the Lima baseball diamond earlier in the season, are going to help the Lima Independents this afternoon, in effort to give the Independents a two game victory today.

Ralph Herring, formerly with the Independents, but under contract with the Triangles will work behind the bat for the Independents, while Schirm, their classy first baseman, will hold down the initial sack.

It was all arranged because the Independents are going to try again this afternoon to play a doubleheader. Del Drake's Findlay outfit that was scheduled here last Sunday, but was unable to get into action because of rain has been scheduled for the first game of today, while the third game of the series between Lima and Paulding is the second on the bill.

Bernie Halloran, determined to win both games today if possible, has cast aside experiments with youngsters and is going to have two veterans on the bench to pitch the battles of today. Berry, that lad who won four straight games here earlier in the season, and who as a result was picked up by scouts of the South Dakota League will be in the box for one of the games. The South Dakota League season has ended, and Berry has come back to the town where he got his start. He's a veteran at the art of hurling, and should probably be a valuable asset

MERHAB TO PITCH

Merhab the Columbus Grove lad, who pitched one inning of the Dayton Rubber game here last Sunday, only to be stopped by rain, will be the other first string pitcher Merhab is an old college star, and for two years played with a team in the Pennsylvania outlaw league. He's got a lot of stuff, and should win his game today if he pitches his usual brand of ball.

The battery is the one spot on the Independent outfit that during the past number of games has been causing them to suffer defeat. Youngsters, or inexperienced men were working both behind and in front of the bat on most occasions, and altho they displayed some mighty good ball, the team didn't seem to have confidence in them

Backstops, especially have been weak. It is this position that Halloran has had a great deal of difficulty in filling it as it should be filled.

The games this afternoon are both series contests. The one with Paulding will break a one game tie between these two outfits. Lima won the first game of the series and the Paulding outfit won the second That evened them up. Now one of the two teams will leave to take the lead.

LIMA HOLDS EDGE

Lima holds the edge on Findlay in that series, for the Independents won the opener and the only game played. The series between the Lima and Findlay teams will go three games.

The first game of this afternoon is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock. The opener will be between Findlay and the Independents. Paulding will play in the second.

Halloran has not as yet decided just which of the two hurlers will work in the first game for the Independents.

Harry Clark, as usual will grace third base on the Paulding outfit while Del Drake will probably be the feature player on the Findlay line-up.

HERRING TO CATCH FOR LIMA IN DOUBLEHEADER

Herring, former Lima Independent catcher and now under contract with the Dayton Triangles, will work behind the plate for the Independents in today's games.

CENTRAL HIGH PLANS FOR TWO PRE SEASON GRID BATTLES HERE

THE Central High football team will open the season on October 2, with Bowling Green at that city. This is expected to be one of the hardest fought games of the season as the two teams are old rivals. Last year Central defeated Bowling Green in a muddy, rough game, 6-0. This way the only Trolley League game won by Central last year.

Coach Detrick is considering plans to schedule two preseason games with teams in the immediate vicinity of Lima.

The next date, October 9, is still open. Arrangements have not yet been made for this date.

Starting on October 16 Central will play four games at home. They are: October 16, Findlay; October 23, Tiffin; October 30, Defiance, and November 6, Ada. This game will undoubtedly be interesting as Ada is claiming the Northern Ohio championship. November 13 is an open date, then the team travels to Fostoria on November 20 and closes the season by playing South High on Thanksgiving day at the college field

Tho this schedule is a harder one than that played last year the Central players think that the final standing will be much better than last year. The team has completed its preliminary practice and early this week expects to start scrimmaging.

Central's prospects look very good this year. They have five letter men practising now and four more will return to Lima and be with the team in a few days. Capt. Blunk is known to be a whirlwind on rushing the line and Rotroff, the player that drop-kicked and won for South against Central last year is attending Central this year and will undoubtedly be a strong man on the team.

Over thirty condidates are daily practicing and some of the new men are showing remarkable playing ability.

SHARKEY WINS

EVANS WINS AMATEUR TITLE

ROSLYN, N. Y.—Chick Evans, of Chicago, won the national amateur golf championship Saturday by defeating Francis Ouimet of Boston 7 and 6.

Evans' victory was due to his steadiness. Ouimet had developed wildness overnight and was usually over-strong in reaching the greens The New Englander had kept out of all competitions this year, save for two in his home district, and was believed to have overtaxed himself Friday in winning from Bobby Jones of Atlanta.

The two stars took 41 strokes to their first nine holes, halving all except the sixth, which went to Ouimet, and the ninth, which Evans took after Francis got into trouble and required six strokes They played better after the turn, Evans coming back in 35, with a total of 76 for the 18 holes and Ouimet met a 37 for a total of 78. Evans was 2 up when the morning round was completed. He took four holes to Ouimet's two in the second nine and each made two threes.

DECIDED IN FIRST

The first nine holes of the afternoon round really decided the championship. The Chicagoan went out in 34, as compared with a par 36, and with a birdie two in the next hole, did ten holes in the part allowance for nine. Ouimet required 40 strokes. Chick took five holes to Ouimet's none and at the end of the 27th hole, was 7 up.

Ouimet had slightly the best drive, but Evans played a great pitch and was on the green on his second in the 30th and deciding hole. Ouimet's second carried him beyond the green and he was too strong getting back, and missed his putt Chick missed a putt of four feet and a half, but sank the next for a four to Ouimet's five.

Evans won both the national open and amateur titles in 1916 He was runner-up in the open championship in 1914 and in the amateur in 1912

Ouimet won the national in 1913 in famous play-off with Harry Vardon and Red Ray of England, and won the amateur title the following year. Evans was a 7 to 5 favorite when play began Saturday.

The cards for the morning round were: Evans out, 554, 554, 445-41. Ouimet out, 554, 553, 446-41. Evans in, 514, 435, 444-35-76. Ouimet in, 434, 545, 543-37-78.

In the afternoon the cards were: Evans out, 444, 434, 434-34. Ouimet out, 455, 444, 446-40. Evans in, 254, Ouimet in 245.

JUDGE JACKSON TO COACH SOUTH HIGH FOOTBALL AGGREGATION

NO. South High School isn't going to be handicapped by the lack of a football coach. Not much this year, as long as Judge Emmett Jackson of police court is in the city.

Judge Jackson, a former football star himself, anxious at first to have but one team represent the city in all out of town games, has come over to the side of the high school lads, and has not only agreed to accept their stand, but he has offered and his offer has been accepted, to take the south boys under his wing and teach them the game.

Judge Jackson, now Coach Jackson, made good his offer Saturday morning, and for the first time since the South boys began to practice this season, they had a coach directing there work.

Jackson was formerly a varsity player at Kenyon college where he took his literary work, and later at Western Reserve where he not only won the right to practice law in Ohio courts, but also where he won laurels on the football field, on the basketball floor and on the cinder path.

Besides that, Jackson is well enough acquainted with the game to have been an official referee for the Ohio conference in both football and basketball in the past couple of years.

Jackson took charge of the South High School boys Saturday morning and put them thru a little workout. Passing the ball was about all that he permitted them to do the first day, but by the middle of the week, bucking, forward passing, punting and tackling will probably be added to the action

South has a willing bunch of youngsters in uniform, but they lack the material from which to make a second taem. In Ireland, a senior, they have a lad who is perfecting drop kicking to the point where he is going to be a consistent scorer Most of the other lads, need a lot of instruction. Just the same, they should be able to give Central a hot fight when the Thanksgiving game rolls around.

MULE RACE

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—A $1,000 race between mules will be held at the Kentucky State Fair this month. A number of entries have been received from Kentucky's famous mule producing counties

STEP LIGHTLY, MAN O'WAR, VICTORS

BELMONT PARK, N. Y. — In the presence of an immense crowd, Step Lightly won the futurity and Man O'War romped away with the Jockey Club stakes here Saturday.

Step Lightly, a 10 to 1 shot with Keough up, won in surprising style. The two-year-old, entered by W. J. Salmon, was not numbered among the favorites. His time for the six furlongs was 1:12 1-5. The race was a $30,000 affair, of which $1,750 went to the breeders.

GRIDDERS WANT LIMA GAME

The Cleveland Panthers, football aggregation, is looking for a Lima team with which they can battle this fall, according to a letter to the sporting editor of the Lima News and Times-Democrat. The Panthers are a heavyweight outfit made up largely of ex-college men.

They may be reached by writing to business manager George T Jones, 1938 E. 105th-st, Cleveland They announce that they are out for the championship of the U. S.

Changes In Football Rules

With the call for football candidates out all over the country, the grid sport begins to draw attention. The principal changes in the 1920 football rules may be summarized briefly as follows:

Clipping is forbidden, whether or not the ball is dead, if done to a man obviously out of play, roughing the forward passer is considered unnecessary roughness if committed after pass has been made; the pun-out is abolished, and side making touchdown in any part of field may bring ball out straight in front of goal.

Both referee and linesman are charged with duty of watching man in motion before ball is put into play, and player making a shift must have both feet stationary after he has come to his position substitution of player will be completed when he has reported to proper official and change has been made.

Time on incompleted forward pass will be taken out until play starts again; in case of purposely false starting signal, referee may demand that play be made over again.

DEMPSEY SIGNS

NEW YORK. — Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, Saturday signed articles to fight Bill Brenan 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden here October 1, according to Jack Kearns, manager of the champion

Kearns also announced that Dempsey is ready to meet Georges Carpentier, French champion, at any time and expected that articles for the match will be signed shortly.

FOXES PLENTIFUL IN NORTH, SAY TRAPPERS

NORWAY HOUSE, MAN.—Foxes are reported by trappers and Indians as unusually plentiful thruout the Canadian North.

There are eight kinds of foxes taken in Canada for their fur. These are silver, black, red, gray, kit, cross, blue and white foxes. Other varieties whose fur finds its way into the world's markets are the Karitinger fox of Siberia and Central Asia; Japan fox of Japan, China and Korea; and Pampas fox and Patagonian fox of South America.

Despite the inroads made by trappers the race of foxes seems in no danger of being wiped out. North America furnishes annually an average of 200,000 red fox skins, 50,000 gray fox, 30,000 white fox, 15,000 cross fox, 5,000 silver and black fox, 4,00 kit fox and 6,000 blue fox. Fox furs have achieved a wide fashionable vogue in the last decade and are now an important factor in the world's fur trade. Of all fox furs, the black and silver are the most valuable.

TRADES COUNCIL MEETING.

U. S. GAS CANS ON ROOFS OF MOSQUES

SALONICA.—It's a far cry from the wharf in New York Harbor to the roof of a minaret spire in Salonica. But hundreds of American gasoline containers have made the trip. From harboring the "soul of the modern speed demon" they have gone to shelter the priests of the "sons of the faithful" who call to prayers daily from the slender towers of Salonica's Moslem mosques.

Five years of the hard times brought on by war played havoc with the mosques of Salonica. The roofs of the minarets slowly weathered away for lack of repairs. Then the Red Cross came and established a base in the Greek port. Scores of discarded gasoline containers began to pile up near the garage. The "sons of the faithful" saw their chance. They pleaded for the gift of a stock of containers and their request was granted.

Today the roofs of the minarets are good as new. They glisten in a new dress of bright tin. The American gas cans have been cut into gleaming metal shingles by scores of devoted hands and now they shine on the conical roofs of the Moslem steepies.
